BULLETIN

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—(UP)—After striking for six hours, employes of the Richmond-San Rafael Ferry company were granted their demands for increased wages and returned to work. Ferry service was resumed on a normal basis.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today directed Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady to call a conference of seamen and ship-owners "as soon as possible" to end the Pacific coast longshoremen's strike.

McGrady has been in San Francisco since Thursday attempting settlement of the dispute, which has almost paralyzed Pacific shipping.

Miss Perkins telegraphed McGrady:

"I suggest you call a conference of seamen and shipowners in San Francisco at an early date for the purpose of affecting settlement of the seamen's strike."

Dock Strikers Approve Plan

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19. —(UP)—Striking longshoremen gave qualified approval today to an arbitration plan proposed by federal mediators to end the strike which has paralyzed Pacific coast shipping.

The longeshoremen empowered their district executive board to attend a conciliation meeting today. The strikers' representatives at the session included: William J. Lewis, district president; John Bjorklund, Tacoma; John Finnegan, San Francisco; A. H. Pederson, San Diego; M. McGivern, Seattle; Joseph Thomas, Astoria; John Ahern, Portland; and William Dibble, Seattle.

1800 Workers Meet

While authorizing their district executive board to open mediation negotiations, 1800 members of the International Longshoremen's association, at a meeting here, attached two provisions which may prove stumbling blocks to immediate peace.

The strikers required the executive board to refer back to the general membership of all Pacific coast locals for approval of any proposals submitted at conferences led by Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady. They also specified that no longshoremen should return to work until shipowners had met the demands of all other maritime unions now on strike.

Truce Expected

McGrady, who flew here from Washington when threats of a general strike developed, was confident of an early truce. He expected to meet the union executive board and civic leaders, representing shipowners, in immediate conferences.

Royalty Would Join West For Movies

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—(UP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain and Mae West may team up for a movie, if one is to believe the patter of Mae's press agent.

Prince Alexis Thurn-Taxis told Mae who told her press agent who told the press that the bug has bitten his royal highness so deeply that he (the prince) believed that he (the former king) would like very much to make his movie debut. Mae insisted she would have no intention of capitalizing on Alfonso's name. No, indeed.

"If he's anxious about wanting to enter the films all right," she remarked.

VOTE ON TARIFF BILL IN SENATE EXPECTED SOON

Administration Proposal to Grant President Trade Powers

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Before the end of next week the senate probably will vote President Roosevelt the new powers he wants to do a little "Yankee trading" to increase the nation's foreign trade, it was indicated today.

A comparatively quick vote on the administration tariff proposal was indicated by the agreement of the senate to adjourn over the weekend and take up the debate again Monday.

Republicans Are Quiet

Republicans who are attacking the proposal with vigor agreed not to use filibuster tactics to delay passage providing the Democrats would agree to let them have the weekend vacation.

The minority leaders privately have admitted they cannot stop the tariff bill which the senate is likely to approve by a vote of about two to one.

SPECIAL LEAGUE SESSION CALLED FOR CHACO WAR

Council Meeting May 30 to Investigate South America Dispute

GENEVA, May 19.—(UP)—The Gran Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay will be discussed by the League of Nations council at a special session called for May 30th it was decided today.

The council adjourned after calling for the future session and adopting a resolution appealing to the two disputants to re-examine the report of the league's Chaco commission.

Consult 17 Nations

The resolution authorizes the Chaco committee of the council to consult with 17 other nations concerning an embargo on shipment of war munitions to Bolivia and Paraguay. The committee is directed to report back to the council at the May 30th meeting.

The council today considered the text of a formal embargo on munitions and Bolivia, prepared to invoke a drastic weapon to end the war that has raged for months. The council hoped that by night an appeal to 17 nations, including the United States, to approve it, would be sent out by the league secretariat.

Praise Roosevelt

League chiefs expressed elation at President Roosevelt's message to congress, asking wile power to control the arms traffic, including the authority to halt the sale of munitions of any sort to Bolivia and Paraguay.

Paraguay is willing to accept the embargo, it was understood, but Bolivia wanted it framed in such manner as to recognize its disadvantage as an inland nation. All Bolivian munitions must be taken across the Andes mountains, while Paraguay has access to the sea by river.

While it considered the embargo to end the sanguinary war in the Gran Chaco, the league council was understood to have decided to discuss on May 30 the report of its committee which went to South America in a vain effort to arrange a peace between the warring nations.

Officials Await Arms Cooperation

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Administration officials, having led the movement for international control of traffic in arms, today waited for other governments to fall in line before planning further action.

That attitude was summed up by Secretary of State Cordell Hull with an expression of hope that every nation which sells arms and munitions will now do as much acting as it does talking to make the proposed arms ban against Paraguay and Bolivia effective.

Not Enough Garb, State Women Told

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—In the cause of greater efficiency, curvacious women employes of the state sales tax division were advised today to wear more clothes, regardles of weather conditions.

The order created a new furore in the state capital where the "kiss scandal" in the state printing department just subsided.

Although sales tax officials issued denials the "more clothes order" has been made, a United Press representative learned the following had been posted on bulletin boards in the division:

"Some of the girls have been a bit thoughtless in their dress recently. This condition must be corrected."

It was whispered that some of the women workers wore nothing under their dresses. Such a condition, it was said, interfered with the efficiency of other employes, especially male workers.

EXPLOSION REVIVES ILLINOIS COAL WAR

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 19.—(UP) — Two powerful dynamite bombs which shook suburbs of the state capitol wrecked super-structures of two coal mines today in an apparent revival of factional union warfare. More than 30 men have been killed in previous disorders and a huge toll taken in property damage.

The fan house and blacksmith shop of a Peabody Coal Co., mine at Riverton were destroyed by an explosion at midnight which showered burning debris over George Brown, watchman.

An hour later a heavy explosion demolished the fan house of another Peabody mine at Andrew.

LA FOLLETTE RAISES NEW MIDDLE PARTY

Delegates to the LaFollette Progressive Republican convention took over the city this morning, with at least the most vociferous elements favoring a severance from the parent party.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette jr., leader of the faction and doubly interested in the outcome of the convention because he is a candidate for re-election this year, dominated the hotel lobby conferences preceding the convention opening.

RIOTS BREAK OUT IN MINNEAPOLIS STRIKE

MINNEAPOLIS, May 19.—(UP)—As 5000 Minneapolis truckers voted on arbitration measures, violence broke out in the produce market district today. One man was injured critically, and several others were struck by stones.

The strikers were seeking to stop the movement of vegetables and other perishable foodstuffs from the market district. One truck managed to get away from pickets, but was stopped by others and demolished.

France won the opening two singles matches yesterday.

MEXICAN HELD ON WORTHLESS CHECK CHARGE

Manuel Garcia Arrested By Local Officers In San Jose

HELD AS a possible suspect in the unsolved murder of Manus Gantman, Santa Ana merchant who was slain in his store almost two years ago, Manuel Garcia, 35 former Talbert milker, was arrested in San Jose today, on a bad check charge.

Garcia will be returned to Santa Ana tomorrow. He was trailed by Detective Sergeant C. W. Wolford and Investigator Robert Sandon of the district attorney's office, who sought him on a charge of passing fictitious bank checks.

Garcia had been suspected of the murder by police since he disappeared from Santa Ana several days after the Gantman murder. He had passed several checks to Gantman prior to the murder and was traced by that means.

Killed Oct. 24, 1932

Gantman was killed in his clothing store at 310 East Fourth street about noon on October 24, 1932. He had been hit over the head with an iron bar 16 inches long, which was found near the body. Two Mexican women, Teresa Higera and Castodia Robiez, discovered the body and ran screaming to the street.

Police were mystified by the killing. Robbery was not the motive because $40 in cash remained in the till and his pockets had not been searched. They believe the murder was premdiatd bcaus Gantman had been struck from behind.

The Mexican woman had entered the store to make a purchase.

Gantman had been a resident of Santa Ana for nine years and was survived by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Gantman, a brother Max Gantman, who operated stores in Whittier and Anaheim and three

Murder Charge May Be Result Of Dock Death

SAN PEDRO, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—The district attorney's office was expected today to determine whether Walter Hannefield, special guard, is to be prosecuted on a charge of firing the shot that killed Dick Parker, 20-year-old striking longshoresman, in the bloody riot which flared along a Wilmington dock early this week.

The case passed to the district attorney's office when a coroner's jury returned an open verdict at an inquest.

RIOTERS CONVICTED

VISALIA, Calif., May 19.—(UP)—Two women and a man today were convicted of leading a riot at a county welfare depot at Pixley.

A superior court jury of six men and six women found Mrs. Lillie Dunn, Mrs. Frances Hicks and M. L. Harding guilty after a short deliberation. Lillian Monroe, admitted Communist organizer who was charged jointly with the others, was dismissed.

OGDEN MILLS CALLS UPON REPUBLICAN PARTY YOUTH TO REJECT REGIMENTATION

WHITE PLAINS, May 19.—(UP)—Ogden L. Mills, spokesman for Republican antagonists of the New Deal, today called upon the youth of his party to repudiate the "trends toward control of industry and regimentation of the public" which, he declared, underlie the Roosevelt program.

In a speech before the state association of Young Republican Clubs, Mills said that "if the process now under way is permitted to continue unchallenged, American institutions and civilization are in greater danger than at any time since the founding of the republic."

"Regimentation," he argued, "means retrogression, not progress, and the sacrifice of some of the most precious rights this country was founded to uphold and preserve."

Quotes Tugwell

Turning to the "brain trust," he quoted widely from Dr. Rex Tugwell's book, "The Economic Discipline" as proof that the administration is headed for complete governmental control of economic life.

"The United States," he said, "is to be transformed into a sort of Spain of the Sixteenth century."

Declaring that Tugwell's basic requisites to a planned and controlled economy are control of prices, wages, production and the flow of capital, Mills charged that the NRA, the AAA, the Securities Act and the stock exchange bill, taken together, "already have placed control in the hands of the government."

Abandons System

"To me," he continued, "it is one of the most amazing events in history. Without consideration, without debate, in precipitate haste, a great nation is abandoning a system under which, say what you will, and in spite of recurring depressions, it has enjoyed for 150 years greater progress, greater and constantly increasing prosperity, greater happiness and greater freedom than any nation, any time, anywhere.

EXPECT ARREST IN ROBLES CASE AS CLUE FOUND

TUCSON, Ariz., May 19.—(UP)—An important arrest in the June Robles kidnaping is expected "within the next few hours," it was learned today as authorities revealed that the first tangible clue as to the identity of the kidnaper had been unearthed.

The identity of the suspect was carefully guarded.

Positive identification of several articles found in the desert grave where six-year-old June was held prisoner for nineteen days has been made, authorities said.

June was released from the cruel torture box Monday night. An ankle chain bound her fast. The only ventilation was from a small opening at the top which was lightly screened by cactus and mesquite.

Entombed Three Days

The girl said she was imprisoned the entire 19 days but physicians, convinced she could not have lived that long, believed she was

RAILWAY BOMBINGS

(By United Press)

POLITICAL upheaval in the troubled Balkans today resulted in the establishment of a "strong hand" government to supplant the parliamentary regime that has ruled under King Boris III.

Troops took charge of Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, while the 40-year-old monarch appointed the country's first non-parliamentary government, presumably at the demand of dissatisfed army leaders.

During the immediate transition, communication between Sofia and the outside world was interrupted, and wild rumors spread over central Europe concerning the Bulgarian situation.

One such rumor, which reached Vienna, said that the royal family had been bombed.

The Bulgarian legation in Washington today claimed to have conclusive evidence that the king had not been injured in an attempt on his life as widely reported in Europe.

With re-establishment of communication, it was indicated that the change of government had been effected without violence and that the troops had been withdrawn from the streets of Sofia.

Army leaders in the Bulgarian capital have been restive and disgruntled for weeks and it was understood that their demand for a new and stronger form of government resulted in the change.

Dispatches from Bulgaria said the king had appointed the new cabinet "aided" by the army, after the generals had petitioned him to do so and expressed their annoyance over recent political haggling.

While the new regime was being installed at Sofia, a series of railway bombings were reported from 11 different sections of Austria. The bombers took precautions against wrecking trains and Austrian authorities expressed the opinion they were Nazi railway workers.

A sentiment for dictatorial government in Bulgaria has been brewing among army men for

President Cruises, Finishes Message

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt was cruising peacefullly on the Potomac today aboard the yacht Sequoia, with the drive to wind up the 73rd congress in full swing.

The president was utilizing the interlude to complete his congressional message on silver legislation which he expected to send to congress Monday. After that the president has only three more messages for congress.

GRADUATE FROM BERKELEY FLAYS EDUCATION SYSTEM

BERKELEY, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—In arresting contrast to the usual valedictory address, a University of California student today criticized the educational system under which the 1934 class was trained and pictured the apathy and skepticism of her classmates.

The speaker was Miss Francelia Knapp, vice president of the graduating class. She and Wakefield Taylor, class president, were student speakers at the annual commencement exercises in the Greek theater of the college campus. Bachelor's degrees were conferred on 1871 undergraduates.

"The college graduate of today is not prepared for life either in a material world or a cultural world," Miss Knapp said according to a prepared copy of her speech.

"The depair I speak of today has been crystallizing slowly with most of our generations, our apathy is the result first of the civilization in which we live and second of our education.

"The standards of living in our capitalistic society—profit and property—have lost their power yet the world still worships their fallen images. We are left with an old building we don't like and little with which to build a new one. Here is the tragedy of the college graduate."

Taylor spoke of the functions of the university in the changing world. He said that the university has shown itself the only agency capable of providing intelligent and informed guidance of the people.

President Robert Gordon Sproul was commencement speaker. The medalist was Marjorie Jean Young Berkeley, selected as the most distinguished graduate of the academic colleges.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

BERKELEY, May 19.—(UP)—Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, announced today that the board of regents voted unanimously to retain compulsory military training in all divisions of the school despite protests against the required drill.

CHICAGO, May 19.—(UP)—A serious fire broke out in the heart of the stockyards late today. The fire started in a group of sheep pens. Great clouds of black smoke rolled over the loop district. Several companies of fire apparatus answered the first alarms.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Living costs have increased 10 to 12 per cent from levels prevailing when President Roosevelt was inaugurated, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins told the senate banking committee today in support of the administration's home remerelling and construction bill.

CALAVERAS JUMPING FROGS HOLD CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., May 19.—(UP) — Sleek, long-legged jumping frogs of the Calaveras country were scooped from their ponds today and entered in the preliminary events of the annual contests for the world's championship.

Preliminaries late today were arranged for exhibition purposes and to acquaint the frogs with the arenas and crowds. Championship jumps will be held tomorrow.

Louis Fisher's Budweiser, holder of the World's title and winner of the 1931 and 1932 jubilees, headed the list of contestants. He was in rare jumping form. His handlers predicted he would better the mark of 13 feet, 9 inches he established in 1932.

Zenobia, another famous frog from Kinston, N. C., croaked lustily as though intimating that her three-year stay in the Angels Camp municipal frog pond had improved her stamina and placed her among the best of the Calaveras champions. Zenobia was insured when she was sent here in 1931, but the policy was permitted to lapse, due to the comparative absence of danger in the municipal pond.

Safety of the pond did not extend to Wilhelm of Berlin, who crossed ocean and continents to participate in the 1932 contests. Wilhelm was turned loose in the municipal "stable" and either lost his identity or sought romance in a more isolated area. He could not be found this year.

The Washington, N. C., fire department sent Smoke and False Alarm to uphold the honor of the South. Smoke placed fifth in 1931. These frogs arrived by mail two days ago, showing no ill effects of their long journey.

Gantman was killed in his clothing store at 310 East Fourth street about noon on October 24, 1932. He had been hit over the head with an iron bar 16 inches long, which was found near the body. Two Mexican women, Teresa Higera and Castodia Roblez, discovered the body and ran screaming to the street.

Police were mystified by the killing. Robbery was not the motive because $40 in cash remained in the till and his pockets had not been searched. They believe the murder was premdiatd bcaus Gantman had been struck from behind.

The Mexican woman had entered the store to make a purchase.

Gantman had been a resident of Santa Ana for nine years and was survived by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Gantman, a brother Max Gantman, who operated stores in Whittier and Anaheim and three

Murder Charge May Be Result Of Dock Death

SAN PEDRO, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—The district attorney's office was expected today to determine whether Walter Hannefield, special guard, is to be prosecuted on a charge of firing the shot that killed Dick Parker, 20-year-old striking longshoreman, in the bloody riot which flared along a Wilmington dock early this week.

The case passed to the district attorney's office when a coroner's jury returned an open verdict at an inquest.

RIOTERS CONVICTED

JUNE PLAYS AGAIN

OGDEN MILLS CALLS UPON REPUBLICAN PARTY YOUTH TO REJECT REGIMENTATION

WHITE PLAINS, May 19.—(UP)—Ogden L. Mills, spokesman for Republican antagonists of the New Deal, today called upon the youth of his party to repudiate the "trends toward control of industry and regimentation of the public" which, he declared, underlie the Roosevelt program.

In a speech before the state association of Young Republican Clubs, Mills said that "if the process now under way is permitted to continue unchallenged, American institutions and civilization are in greater danger than at any time since the founding of the republic."

"Regimentation," he argued, "means retrogression, not progress, and the sacrifice of some of the most precious rights this country was founded to uphold and preserve."

Quotes Tugwell

Turning to the "brain trust," he quoted widely from Dr. Rex Tugwell's book, "The Economic Discipline" as proof that the administration is headed for complete governmental control of economic life.

"The United States," he said, "is to be transformed into a sort of Spain of the Sixteenth century."

Declaring that Tugwell's basic requisites to a planned and controlled economy are control of prices, wages, production and the flow of capital, Mills charged that the NRA, the AAA, the Securities Act and the stock exchange bill, taken together, "already have placed control in the hands of the government."

Abandons System

"To me," he continued, "it is one of the most amazing events in history. Without consideration, without debate, in precipitate haste, a great nation is abandoning a system under which, say what you will, and in spite of recurring depressions, it has enjoyed for 150 years greater progress, greater and constantly increasing prosperity, greater happiness and greater freedom than any nation, any time, anywhere.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 19.—(UP)—An important arrest in the June Robles kidnaping is expected "within the next few hours," it was learned today as authorities revealed that the first tangible clue as to the identity of the kidnaper had been unearthed.

The identity of the suspect was carefully guarded.

Positive identification of several articles found in the desert grave where six-year-old June was held prisoner for nineteen days has been made, authorities said.

June was released from the cruel torture box Monday night. An ankle chain bound her fast. The only ventilation was from a small opening at the top which was lightly screened by cactus and mesquite.

Entombed Three Days

The girl said she was imprisoned the entire 19 days but physicians, convinced she could not have lived that long, believed she was

GRADUATE FROM BERKELEY FLAYS EDUCATION SYSTEM

BERKELEY, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—In arresting contrast to the usual valedictory address, a University of California student today criticized the educational system under which the 1934 class was trained and pictured the apathy and skepticism of her classmates.

The speaker was Miss Francelia Knapp, vice president of the graduating class. She and Wakefield Taylor, class president, were student speakers at the annual commencement exercises in the Greek theater of the college campus. Bachelor's degrees were conferred on 1871 undergraduates.

"The college graduate of today is not prepared for life either in a material world or a cultural world," Miss Knapp said according to a prepared copy of her speech.

"The depair I speak of today has been crystallizing slowly with most of our generations. our apathy is the result first of the civilization in which we live and second of our education.

"The standards of living in our capitalistic society—profit and property—have lost their power yet the world still worships their fallen images. We are left with an old building we don't like and little with which to build a new one. Here is the tragedy of the college graduate."

Taylor spoke of the functions of the university in the changing world. He said that the university has shown itself the only agency capable of providing intelligent and informed guidance of the people.

President Robert Gordon Sproul was commencement speaker. The medalist was Marjorie Jean Young Berkeley, selected as the most distinguished graduate of the academic colleges.

KING SETS UP ARMY TROOP GOVERNMENT

RAILWAY BOMBINGS

(By United Press)

POLITICAL upheaval in the troubled Balkans today resulted in the establishment of a "strong hand" government to supplant the parliamentary regime that has ruled under King Boris III.

Troops took charge of Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, while the 40-year-old monarch appointed the country's first non-parliamentary government, presumably at the demand of dissatisfed army leaders.

During the immediate transition, communication between Sofia and the outside world was interrupted, and wild rumors spread over central Europe concerning the Bulgarian situation.

One such rumor, which reached Vienna, said that the royal family had been bombed.

The Bulgarian legation in Washington today claimed to have conclusive evidence that the king had not been injured in an attempt on his life as widely reported in Europe.

With re-establishment of communication, it was indicated that the change of government had been effected without violence and that the troops had been withdrawn from the streets of Sofia.

Army leaders in the Bulgarian capital have been restive and disgruntled for weeks and it was understood that their demand for a new and stronger form of government resulted in the change.

Dispatches from Bulgaria said the king had appointed the new cabinet "aided" by the army, after the generals had petitioned him to do so and expressed their annoyance over recent political haggling.

While the new regime was being installed at Sofia, a series of railway bombings were reported from 11 different sections of Austria. The bombers took precautions against wrecking trains and Austrian authorities expressed the opinion they were Nazi railway workers.

A sentiment for dictatorial government in Bulgaria has been brewing among army men for

LATE NEWS FLASHES

BERKELEY, May 19.—(UP)—Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, announced today that the board of regents voted unanimously to retain compulsory military training in all divisions of the school despite protests against the required drill.

CHICAGO, May 19.—(UP)—A serious fire broke out in the heart of the stockyards late today. The fire started in a group of sheep pens. Great clouds of black smoke rolled over the loop district. Several companies of fire apparatus answered the first alarms.

CALAVERAS JUMPING FROGS HOLD CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—Sleek, long-legged jumping frogs of the Calaveras country were scooped from their ponds today and entered in the preliminary events of the annual contests for the world's championship.

Preliminaries late today were arranged for exhibition purposes and to acquaint the frogs with the arenas and crowds. Championship jumps will be held tomorrow.

Louis Fisher's Budweiser, holder of the World's title and winner of the 1931 and 1932 jubilees, headed the list of contestants. He was in rare jumping form. His handlers predicted he would better the mark of 13 feet, 9 inches he established in 1932.

Zenobia, another famous frog from Kinston, N. C., croaked lustily as though intimating that her three-year stay in the Angels Camp municipal frog pond had improved her stamina and placed her among the best of the Calaveras champions. Zenobia was insured when she was sent here in 1931, but the policy was permitted to lapse, due to the comparative absence of danger in the municipal pond.

Safety of the pond did not extend to Wilhelm of Berlin, who crossed ocean and continents to participate in the 1932 contests. Wilhelm was turned loose in the municipal "stable" and either lost his identity or sought romance in a more isolated area. He could not be found this year.

The Washington, N. C., fire department sent Smoke and False Alarm to uphold the honor of the South. Smoke placed fifth in 1931. These frogs arrived by mail two days ago, showing no ill effects of their long journey.

VOTE ON TARIFF BILL IN SENATE EXPECTED SOON

Nonetheless the Republican attack has been as strong as that presented to any of the "New Deal" proposals presented by the president.

Could Reduce Tariff

The powers desired by the president would enable him to reduce tariffs as much as 50 per cent where advisable to aid in negotiating favorable agreements with foreign countries to increase American export trade.

Democrats have been content to allow their opponents to criticize the measure at will, hoping by these tactics to speed it to a vote.

Senaate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson is prepared, if necessary, to hold the senate in session 13 hours a day next week to dispose of the debate. It was believed that unless new opposition develops, this procedure would not be necessary.

Thus far the voice of Sen. Huey P. Long, D., La., has been that of the only Democrat to criticize the bill.

FISCHER WILL HEAR SENTENCE MONDAY ON CHECK CHARGE

Refusing to believe the explanation of Bradley M. Fischer, attorney, resident of Red Bank, N. J., Superior Judge James L. Allen declared probation on a no-fund check charge revoked and will pass sentence Monday at 2 p. m. Fischer faces a term of from one to 14 years in San Quentin.

After release from the Orange county jail last year on modified probation after having served nine months of a year's sentence, Fischer was arrested in Twin Falls and Cour d'Alene, Idaho, and Reno, Nevada, on similar bad check charges. He was returned to Orange county from Reno, and came before the court yesterday on hearing of a petition to revoke probation.

LAYOFF PLAN TO AID AUTO INDUSTRY

DETROIT, May 19. — (UP)—Stabilization of employment throughout the troubled automobile industry was hoped for today through a new layoff plan announced by Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of President Roosevelt's automobile labor board.

All major manufacturers, except the Ford Motor Co., agreed to rules seeking to protect seniority rights of family men and veteran employes, Wolman said.

The agreement provides that when working forces must be decreased, men with families, oldest employes and most efficient workers will be given preference for retention; and that increase of employment will bring re-employment in the same order.

Wolman said both workers and employers agreed in conferences to accept the plan immediately.

Later the chief of the general staff resigned and a movement headed by General Lazaroff appealed to the king to empower a strong semi-military government.

King Boris himself was dissatisfied with the course of events and was represented as disgusted with the feuds between the various political factions. Accordingly he picked up the reins of government and named a new cabinet, making his appointments on non-party lines.

ANAHEIM PAIR ASKS $20,080 OF GAS FIRM

Declaring that she was slowly poisoned, without her knowledge, by gas leaking from a pipe connecting her home with the gas company mains, near Anaheim, Mrs. Nellie M. Werner, with her husband, Lewis F. Werner, instituted an unusual damage action in superior court yesterday against the Southern Counties Gas company, demanding $20,080 damages.

The gas line was negligently laid, the complaint alleges, allowing gas fumes to escape in and around the house for a period between February 1 and October 16, 1933, the Werners being unaware of the fact that the air they were breathing was being poisoned and polluted.

Mrs. Werner, it is claimed, suffered "great and severe illness" from which she never will entirely recover. She asks $10,000 damages. Her husband asks $80 medical expenses and $10,000 for loss of his wife's services.

LOWER TAXES ON POULTRY REPORTED IN ORANGE COUNTY

Orange county has a lower tax on poultry than any of the surrounding counties, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the Orange County Farm Bureau Poultry department in the Farm Bureau offices in a report made by E. J. Campbell, head of a special committee appointed to investigate the tax conditions on poultry in the county.

The report showed that the tax per 1000 hens in Orange county amounts to $2.09, while Riverside county tax is $4.29, San Bernardino's $6.75, Imperial's $3.50, Santa Barbara's $4.85, Ventura's $4.88 and Los Angeles' $10.25.

A motion made by E. F. Zimmer for the department to go on record as being opposed to the sales tax being assessed against poultry litter and insectitudes and that the Farm Bureau be requested to present the case to the state board of equalization was carried.

Mrs. E. Irene Anderson, chairman of the Seven Southern Counties Poultry department of the Farm Bureau, discussed the egg marketing agreement. Costs are high and the industry must be protected, she said, calling attention to the fact that many egg producing areas now ship their second grade eggs into the Los Angeles egg market, which now compete with local best grade eggs.

Television, one of the marvels of the scientific world, has been brought to Santa Ana by George Williams of 1324 East Third street, and a television set is in daily operation at his home here.

A demonstration was given last night by Williams for a group of students from U. S. C., in Santa Ana to publish today's edition of The Register. The exhibition was made possible through the efforts of J. F. Hamilton, local short wave enthusiast, who made all arrangements. The program which was received on the local set from W6W and W6XS, television stations of the Don Lee Broadcasting company, featured the Paramount motion picture, "This Day and Age."

This set, the first in Orange county, was built by Williams, and has been in operation here for the last three months. Until he started operations on this set, Williams had seen only pictures and diagrams of television apparatus, and it took him three weeks to complete his project.

The television set is composed of a specially constructed super-heterodyne radio received and a scanning disk, which takes the place of the usual loud speaker. This disk is made of aluminum about 30 inches in diameter, around the rim of which are bored 80 holes about 15 thousandths of an inch in diameter, the wheel spins at 900 revolutions per minute, and light from a neon tube, shining through the holes at varying intensity, produces the picture.

A magnifying lens enlarges the picture for the spectator. Because of the experimental stage of the transmitting unit and a variance in power sources, the images were not clear at times.

Williams and Hamilton predicted that television would become familiar and in common use as soon as transmission is perfected, and that reception would be commercialized by leading radio manufacturers, who have already developed receiving sets in their factories.

The first loud speaking radio receiver in Orange county was introduced by Williams more than 12 years ago, and for some time he was engaged in the construction of custom built sets. At present, he is devoting most of his time in radio repair work, in partnership with Myer Warner.

4 BLOCKS BURNED IN EASTERN FIRE

NEWBURYPORT, Mass, May 19.—(UP)—Conflagration set by a pyromaniac raged through Newburyport today, destroying four entire blocks, for a time the entire city was threatened. Damage will amount to $1,000,000.

At 9 a. m. the firt had been brought under control. Firemen and fire equipment from 15 cities and towns in two states jammed the streets. Extra detail of police guarded razed and partly destroyed building to prevent looting.

The promaniac set seven separate fires soon after midnight. Within an hour all were beyond control. Fanned by a stiff wind, the city seemed doomed, but a quick organization of fire fighters drove the flames back.

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

Students of dry fly fishing have come to the conclusion that a trout or bass cannot discern the shape of a fly as it rides on the water. It is not attracted by the nicely-cocked wings, and pays little attention to the body. The attraction of a fly lies in the light flashes made in the water by the hackle, it is contended.

This supposition was brought home to the writer the other day in fishing for bass on a river near Chagrin Falls, Ohio. Using regulation dry flies, we couldn't raise a fish ,although they were said to be plentiful in the river due to a dam break a short time before which washed hundreds into the river.

In wading a stream we chanced to come upon a chap who had a full creel. It turned out he was using a hair fly, of his own make, constructed of bucktail, that was taking fish when nothing else would.

Ray Snyder was this angler's name, and he, good sportsman that he was, gave us a couple of his bugs. To make a long story short, we caught fish.

The reason, as we see it, is that this hair bug, tied in a fashion that caused it to ride high on numerous hackle tips, sent hundreds of light flashes through the water attracting the bass. The same function of light flashes is had in a hammered metal spoon. The faucetted sides, each reflecting the sun, shoot flashes of light through the water.

The next time you aren't getting such good results from your ordinary dry fly, tie on a lure that is mostly hackle. It may rouse the fish.

COURT SUSPENDS REJECTION OF BIDS

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—The District of Columbia supreme court today granted the Northwest Motor Co., Bethesda, Md., Ford dealers, an injunction enjoining the government from rejecting its bid on federal automotive contracts.

The company claimed its bids, though $30,000 lower than those accepted, were rejected because the Ford Motor company, Detroit, had not complied with NRA regulations.

It pointed out that its bids were accompanied by NRA compliance certificates, as required by law, and denied the right of the secretaries of interior and agriculture to hold it accountable for something the Ford Motor company failed to perform.

AVOCADO GROWERS MAKE GROVE TOUR

A delegation of about 35 Orange county avocado growers, headed by County Farm Advisor Harold Wahlberg, were guests Thursday of the San Diego county Farm Bureau at an avocado tour of southern San Diego county, arranged by Farm Advisor James G. France, of that county.

Growers of both counties joined the tour, visiting dam site and orchards, and witnesing demonstrations of pruning, fertilizing and irrigatng. Lunch was had at Mt. Helix park, a natural amphitheater just dedicated to San Diego county. Nineteen stops were made during the tour.

Fred Hanson, leading grower and owner of the Mt. Helix estates in the La Mesa-El Cajon district, spoke on the general cultivation of avocados. His manager, Chris Dahl, gave a pruning demonstration. Hints to Housewives

A Simple Method For Getting Rid of Ants

Ask any number of women to make up a list of the greatest problems with which the housewife has to contend, and we venture to assert that not a single one would fail to include that exasperating little pest—the ant. There is no reason, however, why the ant nuisance should be looked upon as something which must be borne in silence, because the extermination of ants is a comparatively simple matter. In fact all that is necessary is to spread a little Kellogg's Ant Paste where the ants are accustomed to appear, and you will be amazed at the speed with which they leave the premises. VOTE ON TARIFF BILL IN SENATE EXPECTED SOON

Nonetheless the Republican attack has been as strong as that presented to any of the "New Deal" proposals presented by the president.

Could Reduce Tariff

The powers desired by the president would enable him to reduce tariffs as much as 50 per cent where advisable to aid in negotiating favorable agreements with foreign countries to increase American export trade.

Democrats have been content to allow their opponents to criticize the measure at will, hoping by these tactics to speed it to a vote.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson is prepared, if necessary, to hold the senate in session 13 hours a day next week to dispose of the debate. It was believed that unless new opposition develops, this procedure would not be necessary.

Thus far the voice of Sen. Huey P. Long, D., La., has been that of the only Democrat to criticize the bill.

Refusing to believe the explanation of Bradley M. Fischer, attorney, resident of Red Bank, N. J., Superior Judge James L. Allen declared probation on a no-fund check charge revoked and will pass sentence Monday at 2 p. m. Fischer faces a term of from one to 14 years in San Quentin.

After release from the Orange county jail last year on modified probation after having served nine months of a year's sentence, Fischer was arrested in Twin Falls and Cour d'Alene, Idaho, and Reno, Nevada, on similar bad check charges. He was returned to Orange county from Reno, and came before the court yesterday on hearing of a petition to revoke probation.

LAYOFF PLAN TO AID AUTO INDUSTRY

DETROIT, May 19. — (UP)—Stabilization of employment throughout the troubled automobile industry was hoped for today through a new layoff plan announced by Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of President Roosevelt's automobile labor board.

All major manufacturers, except the Ford Motor Co., agreed to rules seeking to protect seniority rights of family men and veteran employees, Wolman said.

The agreement provides that when working forces must be decreased, men with families, oldest employes and most efficient workers will be given preference for retention; and that increase of employment will bring re-employment in the same order.

Wolman said both workers and employers agreed in conferences to accept the plan immediately.

Declaring that she was slowly poisoned, without her knowledge, by gas leaking from a pipe connecting her home with the gas company mains, near Anaheim, Mrs. Nellie M. Werner, with her husband, Lewis F. Werner, instituted an unusual damage action in superior court yesterday against the Southern Counties Gas company, demanding $20,080 damages.

The gas line was negligently laid, the complaint alleges, allowing gas fumes to escape in and around the house for a period between February 1 and October 16, 1933, the Werners being unaware of the fact that the air they were breathing was being poisoned and polluted.

Mrs. Werner, it is claimed, suffered "great and severe illness" from which she never will entirely recover. She asks $10,000 damages. Her husband asks $80 medical expenses and $10,000 for loss of his wife's services.

LOWER TAXES ON POULTRY REPORTED IN ORANGE COUNTY

Orange county has a lower tax on poultry than any of the surrounding counties, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the Orange County Farm Bureau Poultry department in the Farm Bureau offices in a report made by E. J. Campbell, head of a special committee appointed to investigate the tax conditions on poultry in the county.

The report showed that the tax per 1000 hens in Orange county amounts to $2.09, while Riverside county tax is $4.29, San Bernardino's $6.75, Imperial's $8.50, Santa Barbara's $4.85, Ventura's $4.88 and Los Angeles' $10.25.

A motion made by E. F. Zimmer for the department to go on record as being opposed to the sales tax being assessed against poultry litter and insectitudes and that the Farm Bureau be requested to present the case to the state board of equalization was carried.

Mrs. E. Irene Anderson, chairman of the Seven Southern Counties Poultry department of the Farm Bureau, discussed the egg marketing agreement. Costs are high and the industry must be protected, she said, calling attention to the fact that many egg producing areas now ship their second grade eggs into the Los Angeles egg market, which now compete with local best grade eggs.

Television, one of the marvels of the scientific world, has been brought to Santa Ana by George Williams of 1324 East Third street, and a television set is in daily operation at his home here.

A demonstration was given last night by Williams for a group of students from U. S. C., in Santa Ana to publish today's edition of The Register. The exhibition was made possible through the efforts of J. F. Hamilton, local short wave enthusiast, who made all arrangements. The program which was received on the local set from W6W and W6XS, television stations of the Don Lee Broadcasting company, featured the Paramount motion picture, "This Day and Age."

This set, the first in Orange county, was built by Williams, and has been in operation here for the last three months. Until he started operations on this set, Williams had seen only pictures and diagrams of television apparatus, and it took him three weeks to complete his project.

The television set is composed of a specially constructed superheterodyne radio received and a scanning disk, which takes the place of the usual loud speaker. This disk is made of aluminum about 30 inches in diameter, around the rim of which are bored 80 holes about 15 thousandths of an inch in diameter, the wheel spins at 900 revolutions per minute, and light from a neon tube, shining through the holes at varying intensity, produces the picture.

A magnifying lens enlarges the picture for the spectator. Because of the experimental stage of the transmitting unit and a variance in power sources, the images were not clear at times.

Williams and Hamilton predicted that television would become familiar and in common use as soon as transmission is perfected, and that reception would be commercialized by leading radio manufacturers, who have already developed receiving sets in their factories.

The first loud speaking radio receiver in Orange county was introduced by Williams more than 12 years ago, and for some time he was engaged in the construction of custom built sets. At present, he is devoting most of his time in radio repair work, in partnership with Myer Warner.

4 BLOCKS BURNED IN EASTERN FIRE

NEWBURYPORT, Mass, May 19.—(UP)—Conflagration set by a pyromaniac raged through Newburyport today, destroying four entire blocks, for a time the entire city was threatened. Damage will amount to $1,000,000.

At 9 a. m. the firt had been brought under control. Firemen and fire equipment from 15 cities and towns in two states jammed the streets. Extra detail of police guarded razed and partly destroyed building to prevent looting.

The promaniac set seven separate fires soon after midnight. Within an hour all were beyond control. Fanned by a stiff wind, the city seemed doomed, but a quick organization of fire fighters drove the flames back.

Missourians Plan Reunion Saturday

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

Students of dry fly fishing have come to the conclusion that a trout or bass cannot discern the shape of a fly as it rides on the water. It is not attracted by the nicely-cocked wings, and pays little attention to the body. The attraction of a fly lies in the light flashes made in the water by the hackle, it is contended.

This supposition was brought home to the writer the other day in fishing for bass on a river near Chagrin Falls, Ohio. Using regulation dry flies, we couldn't raise a fish ,although they were said to be plentiful in the river due to a dam break a short time before which washed hundreds into the river.

In wading a stream we chanced to come upon a chap who had a full creel. It turned out he was using a hair fly, of his own make, constructed of bucktail, that was taking fish when nothing else would.

Ray Snyder was this angler's name, and he, good sportsman that he was, gave us a couple of his bugs. To make a long story short, we caught fish.

The reason, as we see it, is that this hair bug, tied in a fashion that caused it to ride high on numerous hackle tips, sent hundreds of light flashes through the water attracting the bass. The same function of light flashes is had in a hammered metal spoon. The faceted sides, each reflecting the sun, shoot flashes of light through the water.

The next time you aren't getting such good results from your ordinary dry fly, tie on a lure that is mostly hackle. It may rouse the fish.

COURT SUSPENDS REJECTION OF BIDS

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—The District of Columbia supreme court today granted the Northwest Motor Co., Bethesda, Md., Ford dealers, an injunction enjoining the government from rejecting its bid on federal automotive contracts.

The company claimed its bids, though $30,000 lower than those accepted, were rejected because the Ford Motor company, Detroit, had not complied with NRA regulations.

It pointed out that its bids were accompanied by NRA compliance certificates, as required by law, and denied the right of the secretaries of interior and agriculture to hold it accountable for something the Ford Motor company failed to perform.

As their largest project of the year, students from the School of Journalism of the University of Southern California took over today's issue of the Santa Ana Register, taking complete charge of the gathering, writing and editing of news. The students all have staff positions on the Daily Trojan, student journal at the university.

Acting as city editor was Wendell Sether, editor-in-chief of the S. C. daily. His assistant was Jack Frankish, assistant editor of the Daily Trojan. Marc N. Goodnow, field representative of the School of Journalism, was the faculty adviser.

Receiving practical training in carrying out the theories learned in the classroom, students also had charge of the various departments in the local newspaper. ANAHEIM FIRST NATIONAL BANK SHAREHOLDERS ORDERED TO PAY BY FEDERAL RECEIVER

ANAHEIM, May 19.—Hopes of officers and directors of the Anaheim First National bank that some plan of reorganizing the institution, closed since the end of the banking holiday in March, 1933, were blasted yesterday when J. V. Hogan, federal receiver for the institution published legal notices to all shareholders calling for immediate payment of their liability totalling $75,000. The notice demanded payment of each shareholder's full liability on or before June 16, this year. This action, it is pointed out is virtually a closing of all doors toward reorganization.

William A. Dolan, former president of the bank said that directors of the institution have worked out several reorganization plans but none of them could gain approval by the authorities in Washington. He said that when the last plan was submitted to Washington word was sent back that it was the opinion of authorities there that Anaheim is well supplied with banking houses and that they could find no excuse for reopening the institution which remained closed after National Bank Holiday in 1933.

Dolan said that shortly after the first of the year Washington granted a reappraisal of the bank's assets and the result was sufficiently satisfactory to lead directors to believe that a reorganization plan acceptable to Washington could be worked out.

Deposits in the Anaheim First National bank in 1929 totaled $1,250,000. When the economic depression was seriously felt here the bank was forced to liquidate approximately $900,000 of that amount leaving about $350,000 to be accounted for. The bank was capitalized at $75,000 and had a surplus of $15,000.

While Hogan declined to state when depositors might expect their first checks or to what extent settlement might be made Dolan said that in his opinion depositors may receive 50 per cent if the full amount of stockholders liability is collected.

APPEALING VARIETY OF MUSIC PLANNED BY CANTANDO CLUB FOR ORANGE HIGH CONCERT

In building their program for next Tuesday night's Cantando club concert, to begin at 8:15 o'clock in Orange High school auditorium, the men of the popular singing organization sought to embody such variety as would insure appealing to the taste of everyone in the audience, regardless of musical preferences.

It has been the aim of the club and its founder and director, Leon Eckles, to do this in every program, but they have tried to make this concluding concert of a successful season, express an unusual variety. To this end they have secured as their guest artist, Alfred Kastner, world renowned harpist and soloist with Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, who will introduce the same variety in his harp solos, as the men will in their vocal numbers.

Unusual features of the evening will begin with the opening chorus number, "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones,' a German melody for which piano accompaniment played by Miss Ruth Armstrong, official Cantando acompanist, will be augmented by the pipe organ by Percy Green, head of the music department of the Orange High school.

This opening group will include also "Could My Songs Their Way Be Winging" by Hahn; "Cornish Fiddler's Song," (Gaines arrangement), and "Floods of Spring" by Rachmaninoff. It will be followed by the first group of harp solos by the eminent guest artist, who has announced his selection of "Sarabande" by Chopin; "Romance" by Rubenstein, and "Theme and Variations" by Alessandro Longo.

Cantando numbers will continue with "Song of Bohemia," arranged by Alessandro Longo; 'Maiden Listen" by Adam, and Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea," concluding the first part of the evening's program.

Intermission will be followed by the chorus numbers, "Music When Soft Voices Die" by Matthews, and "Water Boy," a Negro melody with baritone solo sung by Hugh Runnells.

Cantando members will bring the program and their 1933-34 season to a close with the chorus, "Spring Night Waltz" by Filke. This beautiful number has a solo and quartet part, and Sallie Lee Scales, soprano, will assist the club by singing the soprano solo, while Messrs. Alex Garroway, H. P. Filer, Hugh Runnells and W. C. Vieira, all Cantando members, will sing the quartet part.

The program will begin promptly at the specified hour, 8:15 o'clock, and auditorium doors will remain closed while the club is singing, so concert patrons have been urged to be prompt in arrival in order that they may not miss any of the evening's features.

LAWYER GIVEN REPRIMAND BY JUDGE ALLEN

Hearn to Defend Mexican in Contribution Case After Reproof

Reprimanded by Superior Judge James L. Allen for failure to appear for the arraignment of his client at the morning session of court, J. Harvey Hearn, Los Angeles attorney, yesterday adopted the court's ominous suggestion that he should carry the case through to conclusion.

Hearn is representing Francisco Talamantes, chargéd with contributing to the delinquency of an 18-year-old Mexican girl in Delhi. The Mexican told the court that Hearn had solicited his business at the jail, had left his card there, and had been paid $5 to take the case.

The attorney denied this, saying that he had been retained only for preliminary hearing, and that his client had told him he did not know when the hearing had been set, and that he was waiting for definite notice of the time of the hearing. Hearn was brought into court after a bench warrant had been issued during the morning court session, and was warned not to repeat the offense.

Talamantes pleaded not guilty to the arraignment, and trial was set for June 4. Hearn will represent the Mexican.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman showed interest in the statement in reference to Hearn soliciting business at the jail, and questioned Talamantes on the point, but the youth then said he had sent for Hearn, after receiving a letter of recommendation from a friend. An interpreter was necessary in questioning Talamantes.

The canyon highway will be widened under plans for the improvement, it was said. The commission intends to get an early start on the work.

HURLEY FLARES DURING INQUIRY ON PATRONAGE

Department of Justice is Attacked by Former War Secretary

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Charges that the department of justice had attempted to "get a false statement of fact before the public without assuming responsibility for it" were hurled angrily at the Senate Civic Service committee today by former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

He was appearing in the "patronage plot" inquiry on charges that Republicans were scheming to oust Democrats from jobs.

Hurley previously had been accused of participating in the "plot." It was charged that men in the justice department sought to remove Democrats from government positions.

Demands Investigation

The former secretary of war, jumped to his feet and shouted angrily, demanding a complete investigation of the entire case.

"The names of my accusers have not been made known nor have they appeared before this committee so far as I know," Hurley said.

"As a citizen I have a right to know who are my accusers. I have a right to confront them. I demand that this committee accord me that right. My request has been denied by this committee.

"The department of justice is in command of the greatest investigating unit in this nation. It is in a much better position to ascertain the true facts than is this committee.

Hits Assistant Attorney General

"Why should the assistant to the attorney general of the United States be permitted to make a false, slanderous, and cowardly charge upon my character, introduce it into the record of the United States senate, spread it upon the front pages of the newspapers of the nation, before he has used the great agencies of his department to ascertain whether the charge was true or false?"

Hurley referred to A. V. Dalrymple, assistant to the attorney general and former prohibition director, who several days ago brought to the committee's attention the story of the alleged "plot."

THREE WOUNDED IN RANCH RAID FLEE

Three men, traced to Long Beach last night where they received medical treatment for gunshot wounds obtained on the M. C. Hoeptner ranch at Talbert were the objects of wide search today on the part of Southland police.

The men were shot at the Hoeptner ranch after they had broken in and stolen about 40 chickens early yesterday morning. Escaping in a car, the men were not heard of until several hours later when the physician who dressed their wounds notified officers and a report was teletyped to the sheriff's office.

Deputy sheriffs from the farm detail are investigating the case and spent last night making a wide search of hospitals and physicians' offices for the injured men. Those working on the case are Steve Duhart, Fred Swayze, Walter Dungan, Ives Brown, Sam Snodgrass, Claude Potter and Tom Gulick.

VICE PRESIDENT OF GAS FIRM RESIGNS POST

Retirement of F. H. Bivens of Long Beach from the vice presidency of Southern Counties Gas company because of ill health was announced today by F. S. Wade, president of the company. His successor is to be announced Monday.

Bivens, who has been active in the company since its inception in 1911, will, however, continue as a member of the board of directors, Wade said. In announcing Bivens' official retirement, which was regretfully approved by the management, Wade spoke appreciatively of the splendid service given to the gas utility business by Bivens over a period of more than a quarter of a century of continuous service.

Bivens achieved international recognition in the gas utility field a number of years ago when he installed gas plants in Mexico City and in Meriden, Yucatan.

CENSOR ORDERS ON 'NEW DEAL' NEWS REVOKED

Johnson Provides Direct Contacts Between NRA and Working Press

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—General Hugh S. Johnson today restored his famous NRA "goldfish bowl" by revoking a wave of censorship orders which had swept over the recovery administration in recent weeks.

Johnson ordered division administrators to deal directly with the press on all matters under their jurisdiction. For some time a rule had been in effect providing that all information must be released through the publicity office.

The recovery administration's action was taken after restrictions had reached the point where guards were employed to prevent any leakage of information.

The guards were placed in the printing office while the Darrow review board report was being mimeographed along with the replies of Johnson and other NRA executives. The guards are still on duty but Johnson explained they were placed there because of a desire to maintain secrecy regarding the report until its official release.

Along with his relaxation of the press restrictions, Johnson apparently was embarked on a policy of more frequent press conferences. He had a press conference scheduled for today, just 24 hours after holding one yesterday.

MEEK RELEASE ON WRIT IS DENIED IN HEARING BY JUDGE

Walter Meek, 31, of Smeltzer, was denied release from the county jail on a writ of habeas corpus by Judge James L. Allen late yesterday afternoon.

Meek was sentenced January 27, 1933, to two years in jail for contributing to the delinquency of an 18-year-old Santa Ana girl, Hilda Stambaugh, who was living with him at the home of his mother, Mrs. Juda Meek, of Smeltzer. Miss Stambaugh's baby was born and died without medical attention and was buried secretly on the premises where they lived.

Meek's sister, Mrs. Betty Dequerico, 26, and his mother were arrested on the charge of contributing to delinquency of a minor. Mrs. Meek was convicted and served one year. Meek has served 16 months, and is petitioning on a new statute of last year, enacted since his sentencing.

Deputy District Attorney Leo J. Friis opposed the writ, and his claim that the statute was not retroactive was upheld. Clifford E. Hayes, Long Beach attorney, represented Meek.

BOOKED AT JAIL

Unless there is manliness underneath, the greatness of one's talents makes him more dangerous both to himself and to the world.

You were proud of your character and of your strength before their greatest testing came. The supreme opportunity has now arrived to reveal the quality of your manhood. Give no quarter to weakness; walk forward without fear. God is with you.

ANAHEIM FIRST NATIONAL BANK SHAREHOLDERS ORDERED TO PAY BY FEDERAL RECEIVER

ANAHEIM, May 19.—Hopes of officers and directors of the Anaheim First National bank that some plan of reorganizing the institution, closed since the end of the banking holiday in March, 1933, were blasted yesterday when J. V. Hogan, federal receiver for the institution published legal notices to all shareholders calling for immediate payment of their liability totalling $75,000. The notice demanded payment of each shareholder's full liability on or before June 16, this year. This action, it is pointed out is virtually a closing of all doors toward reorganization.

William A. Dolan, former president of the bank said that directors of the institution have worked out several reorganization plans but none of them could gain approval by the authorities in Washington. He said that when the last plan was submitted to Washington word was sent back that it was the opinion of authorities there that Anaheim is well supplied with banking houses and that they could find no excuse for reopening the institution which remained closed after National Bank Holiday in 1933.

Dolan said that shortly after the first of the year Washington granted a reappraisal of the bank's assets and the result was sufficiently satisfactory to lead directors to believe that a reorganization plan acceptable to Washington could be worked out.

Deposits in the Anaheim First National bank in 1929 totaled $1,250,000. When the economic depression was seriously felt here the bank was forced to liquidate approximately $900,000 of that amount leaving about $350,000 to be accounted for. The bank was capitalized at $75,000 and had a surplus of $15,000.

While Hogan declined to state when depositors might expect their first checks or to what extent settlement might be made Dolan said that in his opinion depositors may receive 50 per cent if the full amount of stockholders liability is collected.

In building their program for next Tuesday night's Cantando club concert, to begin at 8:15 o'clock in Orange High school auditorium, the men of the popular singing organization sought to embody such variety as would insure appealing to the taste of everyone in the audience, regardless of musical preferences.

It has been the aim of the club and its founder and director, Leon Eckles, to do this in every program, but they have tried to make this concluding concert of a successful season, express an unusual variety. To this end they have secured as their guest artist, Alfred Kastner, world renowned harpist and soloist with Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, who will introduce the same variety in his harp solos, as the men will in their vocal numbers.

Unusual features of the evening will begin with the opening chorus number, "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones,' a German melody for which piano accompaniment played by Miss Ruth Armstrong, official Cantando acompanist, will be augmented by the pipe organ by Percy Green, head of the music department of the Orange High school.

This opening group will include also "Could My Songs Their Way Be Winging" by Hahn; "Cornish Fiddler's Song," (Gaines arrangement), and "Floods of Spring" by Rachmaninoff. It will be followed by the first group of harp solos by the eminent guest artist, who has announced his selection of "Sarabande" by Chopin; "Romance" by Rubenstein, and "Theme and Variations" by Alessandro Longo.

Cantando numbers will continue with "Song of Bohemia," arranged by Alessandro Longo; 'Maiden Listen" by Adam, and Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea," concluding the first part of the evening's program.

Intermission will be followed by the chorus numbers, "Music When Soft Voices Die" by Matthews, and "Water Boy," a Negro melody with baritone solo sung by Hugh Runnells.

Cantando members will bring the program and their 1933-34 season to a close with the chorus, "Spring Night Waltz" by Filke. This beautiful number has a solo and quartet part, and Sallie Lee Scales, soprano, will assist the club by singing the soprano solo, while Messrs. Alex Garroway, H. P. Filer, Hugh Runnells and W. C. Vieira, all Cantando members, will sing the quartet part.

The program will begin promptly at the specified hour, 8:15 o'clock, and auditorium doors will remain closed while the club is singing, so concert patrons have been urged to be prompt in arrival in order that they may not miss any of the evening's features.

LAWYER GIVEN REPRIMAND BY JUDGE ALLEN

Hearn to Defend Mexican in Contribution Case After Reproof

Reprimanded by Superior Judge James L. Allen for failure to appear for the arraignment of his client at the morning session of court, J. Harvey Hearn, Los Angeles attorney, yesterday adopted the court's ominous suggestion that he should carry the case through to conclusion.

Hearn is representing Francisco Talamantes, chargéd with contributing to the delinquency of an 18-year-old Mexican girl in Delhi. The Mexican told the court that Hearn had solicited his business at the jail, had left his card there, and had been paid $5 to take the case.

The attorney denied this, saying that he had been retained only for preliminary hearing, and that his client had told him he did not know when the hearing had been set, and that he was waiting for definite notice of the time of the hearing. Hearn was brought into court after a bench warrant had been issued during the morning court session, and was warned not to repeat the offense.

Talamantes pleaded not guilty to the arraignment, and trial was set for June 4. Hearn will represent the Mexican.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman showed interest in the statement in reference to Hearn soliciting business at the jail, and questioned Talamantes on the point, but the youth then said he had sent for Hearn, after receiving a letter of recommendation from a friend. An interpreter was necessary in questioning Talamantes.

The canyon highway will be widened under plans for the improvement, it was said. The commission intends to get an early start on the work.

HURLEY FLARES DURING INQUIRY ON PATRONAGE

Department of Justice is Attacked by Former War Secretary

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—Charges that the department of justice had attempted to "get a false statement of fact before the public without assuming responsibility for it" were hurled angrily at the Senate Civic Service committee today by former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

He was appearing in the "patronage plot" inquiry on charges that Republicans were scheming to oust Democrats from jobs.

Hurley previously had been accused of participating in the "plot." It was charged that men in the justice department sought to remove Democrats from government positions.

Demands Investigation

The former secretary of war, jumped to his feet and shouted angrily, demanding a complete investigation of the entire case.

"The names of my accusers have not been made known nor have they appeared before this committee so far as I know," Hurley said.

"As a citizen I have a right to know who are my accusers. I have a right to confront them. I demand that this committee accord me that right. My request has been denied by this committee.

"The department of justice is in command of the greatest investigating unit in this nation. It is in a much better position to ascertain the true facts than is this committee.

Hits Assistant Attorney General

"Why should the assistant to the attorney general of the United States be permitted to make a false, slanderous, and cowardly charge upon my character, introduce it into the record of the United States senate, spread it upon the front pages of the newspapers of the nation, before he has used the great agencies of his department to ascertain whether the charge was true or false?"

Hurley referred to A. V. Dalrymple, assistant to the attorney general and former prohibition director, who several days ago brought to the committee's attention the story of the alleged "plot."

THREE WOUNDED IN RANCH RAID FLEE

Three men, traced to Long Beach last night where they received medical treatment for gunshot wounds obtained on the M. C. Hoeptner ranch at Talbert were the objects of wide search today on the part of Southland police.

The men were shot at the Hoeptner ranch after they had broken in and stolen about 40 chickens early yesterday morning. Escaping in a car, the men were not heard of until several hours later when the physician who dressed their wounds notified officers and a report was teletyped to the sheriff's office.

Deputy sheriffs from the farm detail are investigating the case and spent last night making a wide search of hospitals and physicians' offices for the injured men. Those working on the case are Steve Duhart, Fred Swayze, Walter Dungan, Ives Brown, Sam Snodgrass, Claude Potter and Tom Gulick.

VICE PRESIDENT OF GAS FIRM RESIGNS POST

Retirement of F. H. Bivens of Long Beach from the vice presidency of Southern Counties Gas company because of ill health was announced today by F. S. Wade, president of the company. His successor is to be announced Monday.

Bivens, who has been active in the company since its inception in 1911, will, however, continue as a member of the board of directors, Wade said. In announcing Bivens' official retirement, which was regretfully approved by the management, Wade spoke appreciatively of the splendid service given to the gas utility business by Bivens over a period of more than a quarter of a century of continuous service.

CENSOR ORDERS ON 'NEW DEAL' NEWS REVOKED

Johnson Provides Direct Contacts Between NRA and Working Press

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(UP)—General Hugh S. Johnson today restored his famous NRA "goldfish bowl" by revoking a wave of censorship orders which had swept over the recovery administration in recent weeks.

Johnson ordered division administrators to deal directly with the press on all matters under their jurisdiction. For some time a rule had been in effect providing that all information must be released through the publicity office.

The recovery administration's action was taken after restrictions had reached the point where guards were employed to prevent any leakage of information.

The guards were placed in the printing office while the Darrow review board report was being mimeographed along with the replies of Johnson and other NRA executives. The guards are still on duty but Johnson explained they were placed there because of a desire to maintain secrecy regarding the report until its official release.

Along with his relaxation of the press restrictions, Johnson apparently was embarked on a policy of more frequent press conferences. He had a press conference scheduled for today, just 24 hours after holding one yesterday.

MEEK RELEASE ON WRIT IS DENIED IN HEARING BY JUDGE

Walter Meek, 31, of Smeltzer, was denied release from the county jail on a writ of habeas corpus by Judge James L. Allen late yesterday afternoon.

Meek was sentenced January 27, 1933, to two years in jail for contributing to the delinquency of an 18-year-old Santa Ana girl, Hilda Stambaugh, who was living with him at the home of his mother, Mrs. Juda Meek, of Smeltzer. Miss Stambaugh's baby was born and died without medical attention and was buried secretly on the premises where they lived.

Meek's sister, Mrs. Betty Dequerico, 26, and his mother were arrested on the charge of contributing to delinquency of a minor. Mrs. Meek was convicted and served one year. Meek has served 16 months, and is petitioning on a new statute of last year, enacted since his sentencing.

Deputy District Attorney Leo J. Friis opposed the writ, and his claim that the statute was not retroactive was upheld. Clifford E. Hayes, Long Beach attorney, represented Meek.

BOOKED AT JAIL

PLAY CENTERS GET APPROVAL AT BOARD MEET

Summer playground plans were authorized by the Santa Ana board of education last night, and W. W. Wieman, who has had charge of the emergency education program, was requested to prepare a tentative playground program, to have ready in the event that the now uncertain prospect of federal financing actually materializes.

Action was taken at the suggestion of Dr. Margarete Baker, after Superintendent Frank Henderson announced that the federal emergency education program plans are being changed with amazing rapidity and frequency. The latest word came yesterday afternoon, to the effect that the program will probably be operated this summer. It has been called on and off four times this week, however, according to Henderson.

Dr. Baker said she believed the board should be ready with its plans, in the event that Santa Ana should be invited to submit a request for a playground appropriation. Her motion to request Wieman to prepare several alternate plans was adopted.

Will Seek Garage

Lessees of the Julia Lathrop junior high school garage will be requested to relinquish their lease, so that the garage can be utilized as a shop, while the Lathrop shops are being reconstructed in connection with the rehabilitation program there.

Shipkey and Pearson, lessees, have signified their willingness to relinquish the garage, now occupied by a sub-tenant who pays them $25 per month rental, providing the board deducts that amount from the total lease rental paid by Shipkey and Pearson on all premises they have leased at the Lathrop location, it was reported. The board agreed to such an arrangement. The sub-tenant, Manager George Newcom reported, is understood also to be willing to give up the garage.

Code Dues Asked

Board members expressed shock at receiving a bill requesting payment of $21.75 per month as "code" dues for the high school print shop, to help support the county code administration of the Orange County Commercial Printers Association.

The high school shop is not engaged in commercial printing, turning out only the school printing, board members pointed out, expressing belief that no dues should be required. No action was taken.

Miss Florence Lazare, among the probationary teachers dismissed last Monday evening in order to prevent them from gaining tenure, presented a letter of resignation to the board last night, asking that her resignation be substituted for dismissal on the board records. No action was taken, it being pointed out that the teacher had been notified with other teachers of the time limit for filing resignations

Harbor Defense Strengthening Asked by C. of C.

Seeking immediate allocation of necessary money from the PWA or any other appropriate funds for "the undertaking and completion without delay of the approved war department project for the strengthening of harbor defenses of San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Columbia river and Puget Sound," a resolution adopted by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce board of directors was mailed today by Secretary George A. Raymer to representatives of congress from California.

The resolution said the armament and fire control material of the harbor defenses are inadequate to an effective defense of those strategic points on the Pacific Coast against a hostile attack, and that the effective range of the fixed armament falls "seriously short of the effective ranges of the guns carried by the ships of foreign navies."

Services Will Be Attended by Vets

Calumpit Camp No. 26, United Spanish War Veterans, has accepted an invitation from Dr. George A. Warmer, minister of the First Methodist church, to attend Memorial Day services on Sunday, May 27, it was announced today by Major A. F. Moulton, commander.

This year there will be no parade to the Methodist church, Commander Moulton said, but members of the camp and auxiliary will meet in front of the church to attend the services in a body.

RECOGNITION SERVICE HELD AT ORANGE FOR 17 MEXICAN "JOLLY GIRLS" ON FRIDAY

ORANGE, May 19.—An impressive recognition service for 17 members of the Mexican "Jolly Girls Reserves" was held Friday afternoon in the headquarters of the Y. W. C. A., with Miss Frances Wilbur, advisor and organizer of the group, in charge.

In the two and one-half months since the "Jolly" girls were organized, the members have worked on various individual sewing projects. Since the group takes in girls from the second to sixth grades, inclusive, the members are younger than those of the regular Girl Reserve corps, so that special programs rather than the standard activities are arranged for them.

PLAY CENTERS GET APPROVAL AT BOARD MEET

Summer playground plans were authorized by the Santa Ana board of education last night, and W. W. Wieman, who has had charge of the emergency education program, was requested to prepare a tentative playground program, to have ready in the event that the now uncertain prospect of federal financing actually materializes.

Action was taken at the suggestion of Dr. Margarete Baker, after Superintendent Frank Henderson announced that the federal emergency education program plans are being changed with amazing rapidity and frequency. The latest word came yesterday afternoon, to the effect that the program will probably be operated this summer. It has been called on and off four times this week, however, according to Henderson.

Dr. Baker said she believed the board should be ready with its plans, in the event that Santa Ana should be invited to submit a request for a playground appropriation. Her motion to request Wieman to prepare several alternate plans was adopted.

Will Seek Garage

Lessees of the Julia Lathrop junior high school garage will be requested to relinquish their lease, so that the garage can be utilized as a shop, while the Lathrop shops are being reconstructed in connection with the rehabilitation program there.

Shipkey and Pearson, lessees, have signified their willingness to relinquish the garage, now occupied by a sub-tenant who pays them $25 per month rental, providing the board deducts that amount from the total lease rental paid by Shipkey and Pearson on all premises they have leased at the Lathrop location, it was reported. The board agreed to such an arrangement. The sub-tenant, Manager George Newcom reported, is understood also to be willing to give up the garage.

Code Dues Asked

Board members expressed shock at receiving a bill requesting payment of $21.75 per month as "code" dues for the high school print shop, to help support the county code administration of the Orange County Commercial Printers Association.

The high school shop is not engaged in commercial printing, turning out only the school printing, board members pointed out, expressing belief that no dues should be required. No action was taken.

Miss Florence Lazare, among the probationary teachers dismissed last Monday evening in order to prevent them from gaining tenure, presented a letter of resignation to the board last night, asking that her resignation be substituted for dismissal on the board records. No action was taken, it being pointed out that the teacher had been notified with other teachers of the time limit for filing resignations.

Harbor Defense Strengthening Asked by C. of C.

Seeking immediate allocation of necessary money from the PWA or any other appropriate funds for "the undertaking and completion without delay of the approved war department project for the strengthening of harbor defenses of San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Columbia river and Puget Sound," a resolution adopted by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce board of directors was mailed today by Secretary George A. Raymer to representatives of congress from California.

The resolution said the armament and fire control material of the harbor defenses are inadequate to an effective defense of those strategic points on the Pacific Coast against a hostile attack, and that the effective range of the fixed armament falls "seriously short of the effective ranges of the guns carried by the ships of foreign navies."

Services Will Be Attended by Vets

Calumpit Camp No. 26, United Spanish War Veterans, has accepted an invitation from Dr. George A. Warmer, minister of the First Methodist church, to attend Memorial Day services on Sunday, May 27, it was announced today by Major A. F. Moulton, commander.

This year there will be no parade to the Methodist church, Commander Moulton said, but members of the camp and auxiliary will meet in front of the church to attend the services in a body.

RECOGNITION SERVICE HELD AT ORANGE FOR 17 MEXICAN "JOLLY GIRLS" ON FRIDAY

ORANGE, May 19.—An impressive recognition service for 17 members of the Mexican "Jolly Girls Reserves" was held Friday afternoon in the headquarters of the Y. W. C. A., with Miss Frances Wilbur, advisor and organizer of the group, in charge.

"What It Means to be a Girl Reserve" was discussed informally by Mrs. Henry Joost, who emphasized the ideals and aims of the organization to increase service and good citizenship among young women of today.

In the two and one-half months since the "Jolly" girls were organized, the members have worked on various individual sewing projects. Since the group takes in girls from the second to sixth grades, inclusive, the members are younger than those of the regular Girl Reserve corps, so that special programs rather than the standard activities are arranged for them.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

RELIEF

When and if congress gives President Roosevelt that additional emergency appropriations—without strings—a new federal works and relief program will be in prospect.

Close observers say it will combine the best features of Public Works as administered by Harold Ickes and Federal Emergency Relief and Civil Works as directed by Harry Hopkins.

Experience has taught the administration that Public Works as now constituted is too slow. Civil Works produced the desired action but in a rather hit-and-miss fashion. Officials are working out an efficiently planned program designed to get the greatest possible number of men to work immediately.

Although most of the original public works appropriation has been allotted it will be August before the peak of expenditure is reached. Slum clearance is in abeyance pending outcome of condemnation suits. The Housing Corporation Ickes set up has proven pretty much of a flop. Federal projects, bound with the usual rep tape, are moving slowly.

The best investment PWA has made from a standpoint of putting men in jobs was the $200,000,000 it loaned the railroads. Overnight the number of men at work on non-federal projects doubled.

Elsewhere it seems to be a matter of waiting for the final touches to be put on the blue prints.

SHUFFLE

Relief Administrator Hopkins took a sizable wad of money and put 4,000,000 men to work this past winter. Critics pulled the gag about raking the same leaves until they were worn out but temporarily a lot of needy people got paid off every Saturday.

Somewhere between 10 and 20 per cent of the CWA money probably was completely wasted or misapplied. This was due to the inevitable entrance of local politics and graft into a federal spending campaign that was organized and put into operation on the spur of the moment.

The warm months will give Hopkins a breathing spell in his relief work but he isn't fooling himself. He anticipated another big load next winter.

Those close to the president say the new program will be a sort of planned Civil Works. The planning will be done this summer with all the trials and errors to date as a guide.

A desire to reorganize the existing set-up is what lies back of Mrs. Roosevelt's request that congress give him an unearmarked appropriation. He wants to shuffle it around according to the plans now on the fire.

Whether congress will give him a lump sum is another question. This is election year and the boys on Capitol Hill are making a big noise about specifying where all money shall be spent—preferably in their home districts.

• • •

RECESS

White House spurs are being applied to congress to get an adjournment within three weeks.

If the president has his way the boys will be on their way home by June 10 at the latest. There has been some talk of May 25 and June 5 but the 10th looks like the best bet. The extra work Mr. Roosevelt has thrown at them in the way of an emergency relief appropriation and the new housing program will provide enough additional oratory to keep the Congressional Record publishing until nearly mid-June. He also is asking congress to reverse itself on the tax bill item that slapped a processing tax on cocoanut oil from the Philippines, which will occasion still more debate.

Finally there is that long-promised message on international debts. This will be withheld until the last minute and will be a mere factual report but it, too, is bound to stir up the animals.

The president has a personal reason for wanting congress out of town.

He wants to spend a couple of weeks at his Hyde Park home before embarking on his lengthy voyage to the West Indies and Hawaii. Departure date for this trip is set for June 23, from Boston harbor.

Most members of congress want to close up shop with all possible speed. They don't like Washington heat and they want to get back to their election campaigns. It's just a question of how well Vice President Garner and Speaker Rainey can ride herd on the speech-makers.

GERMANY

Our state department learns of a significant change in the attitude of Hitler's public.

Private advices received here tell that in Hitler's recent grandstand play to Berlin's two million force was used to gather his audience. Last year's multitudes assembled of their own free will but this time they had to be forced to attend. Firms announced that those not taking part in the march of two million to hear Hitler would be docked a day's pay. Other firms declared that a fine would be imposed for non-attendance.

The spectacle was impressive, but only the insiders knew how it was obtained.

NOTES

A new treasury regulation reverses old rules and adopts the presumption that no taxpayer is entitled to a depreciation allowance unless he can prove it. . . . Big corporations are squirming but the treasury expects increased revenue. . . . Congressmen are taking advantage of the drought crisis to demand a big boost in relief appropriations. . . . Treasury experts say that the decision to allow exports of gold without a license means we are giving a trial flight to a modified form of gold exchange standard before fixing a permanent gold price. . . . The department of commerce has its eye on Germany's latest big purchase of walnut trees. . . . Rifle stocks are made of walnut. . . . This year's bonus march on Washington is a flop.

WALK-OUT

Those who follow the inside of the Pennsylvania game think they know what happened among those who did go to the polls.

Their explanation is that too many of the old Pinchot supporters registered democratic this time and walked out on the republican primary. The Reed followers were the staunch old republicans who are skeptical about the new deal, who stuck to the G. O. P. The stickers out-numbered the walk-outs.

Registration figures tend to substantiate this explanation. Normal democratic registration in Pennsylvania is between 850,000 and 900,000 (pre-new deal.) Last November it jumped to 1,087,890.

How many ex-republicans of the Pinchot stripe were among these jumpers no one can tell, but certainly more than half probably were ex-Pinchot republicans.

When you consider that Reed defeated Pinchot by only 115,000 or less, the point becomes important.

TANGLE

Mr. Roosevelt got his fingers in the hair of Senator Glass by announcing he did not favor the independent stock market commission idea.

Glass had been rampaging because he was left off the conference committee. Floor Leader Robinson, et al had just about quieted him down. Senator Barkley went to the extent of offering to withdraw from the conference committee if Glass was dissatisfied. That pleased Glass.

Then along came the White House disfavor of the Glass independent commission plan, which had the same effect on Glass as gasoline would on a quiet fire.

The democratic leaders believe they may get Glass under control within a week or so.

The stock market bill therefore will be delayed that long or longer.

• • •

NOTES

The word has been slipped to senatorial leaders by the White House that they need not worry about the prospective war debt message causing any trouble. It will not be anything previously planned, but merely a report on the existing mess, possibly even suggesting that legislation is undesirable. The senators hope that is true.

LABOR

Local authorities predict an administration left turn on labor relations much sooner than expected. Original plans to allow industry to browse in laissez faire pastures this summer and let labor wait its turn must be shelved.

Settlement of the automobile strike by White House intervention—privately hailed by industrialists as a sweeping victory—has boomeranged. Labor has discovered it was gold-bricked and demands what it thought it was getting—the unhampered right to organize on its own terms. Conservative labor leaders who were willing to ride along for the summer on the understanding of government action later if needed find their followers won't let them wait.

Motor—and other—managements have helped precipitate the showdown. Their vigorous drive to build company unions and interference with the growth of outside organizations have given labor the feeling that immediate action is imperative unless it wishes to jeopardize all its benefits under NRA. The informed remark that industry's eagerness to consolidate its open shop gains is the reason those gains are already so seriously menaced.

• • •

LIVELY

The administration's left turn is expected to include the following:

(1) Revamping of the National Labor Board to give it stronger teeth and a more forceful personnel.

(2) Official support for a modified version of the Wagner bill which will cut the roots from under company unions.

(3) A new drive for the 36 hour week as an alternative to the Connery 30-hour bill.

A large section of industry will resist these moves to the limit. Many business leaders rank the open shop issue ahead of recovery. A number of corporations privately admit they will use lockout tactics and every form of court obstruction their legal talent can devise rather than yield an inch.

On the other side you have the embattled unions with fresh Washington support and a determination as grim as their employers'. Best informed local sources agree it would be dangerous for the administration to ignore labor sentiment. It looks like a lively summer.

SAVING

Another source of labor bitterness is the introduction of new labor-saving devices in many industries to offset wage costs under NRA. Here's a sample. A certain company employed 500 girls at $7 a week in pre-code days. Came the Blue Eagle—doubling the minimum wage. So the concern installed new machines and now hires only 100 girls at the $14 rate.

The company claimed this was necessary as a matter of survival. But you can see how it helps reemployment.

BROTHERHOODS

Railway managements aren't much perturbed by the Brotherhoods' drive for six hour day legislation. They doubt that the Brotherhoods will press matters far enough to jeopardize the wage restoration agreement—which is the roads' ace in the hole.

There's a conflict of interest here between the ins and the outs. The six hour day would create more jobs for railway union members—but it would also threaten the pay envelopes of those already employed.

• • •

CENTRAL

The cordial reception to N. Y. Central's new convertible 6s doesn't imply quite so rosy a future as you might think. A combination of high interest and the conversion feature put the issue across—but local authorities remark that Central's problems are far from permanently solved.

They give three reasons. One is that the interest represents a 50% increase over the old 4s—which means $1,200,000 more a year to be met out of earnings. Another is that large immediate outlays are needed for deferred maintenance and for track elevation in New York and Syracuse. The last is that the common stock is now below the conversion level and is unlikely to reach it soon because of these adverse factors hence hoped-for reduction of funded debt through conversion will not occur.

Informed observers sum up with the remark that Central had to do something quickly and did—but its management better not throw away the aspirin yet.

• • •

REGULATION

If Wall Street had its choice between the Federal Trade Commission and a new commission to administer securities regulations it would choose the latter. "At least there's some chance a new commission would know what it's all about—even if Landis were the head. We know the Trade Commission doesn't."

Sharps also point out that a new body would operate unhampered by precedents. The Trade Commission might find it embarrassing to upset earlier rulings (for instance on registration requirements) and of course Wall Street ardently hopes some of them will be tossed out.

• • •

SCORE

The stock exchange crowd—for all its own current troubles—finds cause for a grin in the Federal Reserve ruling that member banks may no longer trade in stocks for customers accounts after June 1st. That means more business for brokers—who have finally scored on the banks with an assist from the New Deal.

• • •

CONSERVATIVE

A local source predicts the RFC will get back all the nickels it has loaned. He offers figures on RFC's collateral requirements in evidence. One borrower had to put up security with a par value of seven times and a market value of four times the amount of its loan. Even a hard-boiled banker would call that conservative.

GIRL SCOUTS TO CAMP AT ROKILI THIS SUMMER

Interest in Girl Scout activities, which received impetus by the successful Court of Awards conducted recently in Irvine park, has been heightened in both Santa Ana and Orange, by plans announced today for the annual Girl Scout camp to be conducted at Camp Rokili in the San Bernardino mountains, August 1 to 10, and for which reservations now are being made.

Mrs. A. W. Rutan and Mrs. Mildred Snyder form the camp committee and Mrs. R. R. Russick will act as camp director. The 10-day program will feature nature study, crafts, dramatics, swimming, hiking and various other Scout activities, all under competent leadership. Mrs. R. C. Harris will direct the work in crafts; Miss Vanche Plumb will have nature study classes and Miss Helen Bowers will have charge of dramatics. Other leaders will include Red Cross nurse, Red Cross life guard and swimming instructor.

Orange Girl Scouts will join the Santa Ana group in camp. The fee this year has been made very reasonable, and an innovation has been introduced in the decision to accept any food products at prevailing market prices, as part payment on camp expenses.

More than 400 interested parents and friends attended the recent Court of Awards and the picnic supper which preceded the ritual. All mothers present received special corsage bouquets. Mrs. Snyder was supper chairman and Mrs. Edith Tedford was program chairman.

Program features and the award of merit badges had the attractive background of a blazing campfire, built by the Girl Scouts. Mrs. A. W. Rutan, Santa Ana chairman of the Girl Scout community committee, introduced Mrs. F. E. Hallman, Orange chairman, who made the awards.

The program opened with the bugle call played by Irene Noble followed by the community singing of "America" and the Girl Scout song, led by Charlotte Mock. A tribute to mothers was given by Elaine Wilkins and a clever skit regarding the approaching camp was presented by Barbara Kemper, Leone Lindegard, Oral Myers and Patsy Miller. The "Brownies," under Miss Urdel Silvey's leadership, put on a ceremonial in connection with Troop No. 5. Other program features in addition to the awards, were camp songs, led by Charlotte Mock, and the singing of "Taps" after the bugle call by Irene Noble.

Mrs. R. R. Russick and Miss Prdel Silver are captain and assistant of Troop No. 1; Mrs. R. C. Harris and Miss Marian Parsons, Troop No. 2; Mrs. A. L. Steward, captain of Troop No. 3; Mrs. George Ames and Miss Florence Warmer, Troop No. 4, and Mrs. Newell Moore, captain of Troop No. 5.

In addition to first class, second class and tenderfoot badges; gold stars for 100 per cent attendance and silver stars for 90 per cent attendance over a year's period, awards included the special citation from national hearquarters to Jean McAuley and Mildred Kemper for "Displaying true Girl Scout spirit and forgetfulness of self in going to the rescue of a stranger in danger of drowning, Newport Bay, July 4, 1933."

Award classifications included housekeeping, health, nursing, needlework, scholarship, bird study, wild flowers, garden flowers, bicycling, junior citizenship, first aid, tree study, observation, and other activities. Many of the Girl Scouts received awards in from three to half a dozen of these pursuits, in addition to gold or silver stars.

Troop 1 awards went to Dorothy Jane Abbott, Dorothy Ashford, Bethel Haven, Helen Herren, Leone Lindegard, Dorothy Newman, Jeanne Harris, Helen Myers, Second Class Scouts; Frances Was, Mildred Kemper and Jean McAuley, First Class. Badges were presented Dorothy Jane Abbott, Ida Bergstetter, June Blodget, Dorothy Butler, Lydia Elliott, Margaret Glocknes, Lucille Griggs, Bethel Haven, Betty Hudson, Barbara Kemper, Mildred Kemper, Evelyn Kent, Laura May Kent, Ruth Jane Mathews, Jean McAuley, Alice McKee, Charlotte Mock, Irene Noble, Jean Russick, Margaret Rutan, Frances Was, Dorothy Newman, Jeanne Harris and Helen Myers.

Troop 2 awards went to Mary Corey, Archalene Winter and Elaine Wilkens. Troop 3 awards to Anna Maria Groty, Mae Ingleman, Betty Vosskuhler, Hortense Taylor, Constance Duffy, Phyllis Sandon. Troop 4 awards were made Eleanor Straub, Charlotte Stafford, Lois Weiman, Ruth Ames, Ellen Blake, Marjorie Wall, Jean Criddle, Jean Dowds, Eileen Gowdy, Dorothy Gammell, Ruth Hawlye, Ladean Laub, Evelyn Owens, Barbara Speed, Olive Schweitzer.

Troop No. 5 awards went to Dorothy Headley, and a group of tenderfoot Scouts, Jane Downing, Joan Hockaday, Mary Katherine Clem, Irene Rohan, Jane Deardorff, Martha George and Dorothy Ely.

The Fullerton Co-Operative, Otto Idso manager, another M. O. D. house, has 40 in the house and 35 in the field, and the American Fruit Growers, independent, Robert Strain, manager, in packing both lemons and valencias, is employing 90 in the house and 85 in the field.

The Quality Fruit company, managed by Harry Wurgaft, an independent shipper, employs 40 men and women in the packing house and about 40 field workers.

LIQUOR LICENSES AT SUNSET, SEAL BEACH REVOKED BY BOARD

As the result of a sweeping investigation into a score of violations of state liquor sale regulations, the license of W. F. Gilliland, who operates a cafe at Sunset Beach, was revoked yesterday at a hearing in Los Angeles before the state board of equalization.

The license of Mrs. Edward Jackson, of Seal Beach, was also called for hearing, but late today no word had been received of the action taken by the board.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman recommended investigation of the cases to the board, but only these two were haled before the liquor control division for hearing. Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner represented Orange county at the hearings.

RENOVIZE PLEDGES ARE SIGNED BY 87 PROPERTY OWNERS

Eighty-seven home owners added their pledges to the Renovize improvement total yesterday, with expenditures of $15,392 promised to be made before September 1, according to reports submitted this morning by the survey men.

This makes a total of 834 pledges, aggregating $343,392 in improvements promised, for the first eight days of active canvass.

The general response to the campaign shows hearty co-operation, the Renovize men continue to report, and householders are doing all in their power to carry out the home modernization and repair inaugurated here two weeks ago as a means of creating employment, and subsequently urged as a nation-wide program by President Rosevelt.

One owner of a rental house, formerly occupied by a painter who was forced to vacate owing $50 in delinquent rental, has become sold on the Renovize idea and promised to buy necessary materials and renovize the home with a thorough painting job if he can find the former occupant to work out his debt for back rent.

From Los Angeles today came a small check to help defray costs of advertising and canvassing for the Renovize campaign, from the main office of a store operating in Santa Ana. The accompanying letter said: "It is a real pleasure in these times to hear of an intelligent organized effort such as yours and deserving of praise and whole-hearted co-operation of all."

CHANGE RACKET OF WOMAN IS FAILURE

Unsuccessful attempts at working a short change racket were made yesterday by an unidentified woman wearing a pink dress. She made attempts at Mike Pandell's grocery, Sixth and Main and Hockaday, Harlow and Phillips, Spurgeon between Second and Third.

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, she made her attempt at the grocery store. An hour later she was at the automotive parts firm.

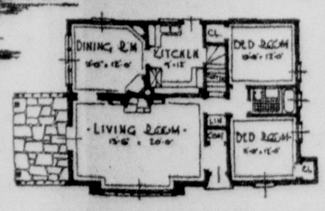

Her procedure was to walk in, lay a $5 bill and $1 bill on the counter and ask for five ones, keeping her money under her hand. When given these, she would nonchalantly say, "I guess I better have a ten," and hand her five and the ones back to the clerk.

RELIEF

When and if congress gives President Roosevelt that additional emergency appropriations—without strings—a new federal works and relief program will be in prospect.

Close observers say it will combine the best features of Public Works as administered by Harold Ickes and Federal Emergency Relief and Civil Works as directed by Harry Hopkins.

Experience has taught the administration that Public Works as now constituted is too slow. Civil Works produced the desired action but in a rather hit-and-miss fashion. Officials are working out an efficiently planned program designed to get the greatest possible number of men to work immediately.

Although most of the original public works appropriation has been allotted it will be August before the peak of expenditure is reached. Slum clearance is in abeyance pending outcome of condemnation suits. The Housing Corporation Ickes set up has proven pretty much of a flop. Federal projects, bound with the usual rep tape, are moving slowly.

The best investment PWA has made from a standpoint of putting men in jobs was the $200,000,000 it loaned the railroads. Overnight the number of men at work on non-federal projects doubled.

Elsewhere it seems to be a matter of waiting for the final touches to be put on the blue prints.

SHUFFLE

Relief Administrator Hopkins took a sizable wad of money and put 4,000,000 men to work this past winter. Critics pulled the gag about raking the same leaves until they were worn out but temporarily a lot of needy people got paid off every Saturday.

Somewhere between 10 and 20 per cent of the CWA money probably was completely wasted or misapplied. This was due to the inevitable entrance of local politics and graft into a federal spending campaign that was organized and put into operation on the spur of the moment.

The warm months will give Hopkins a breathing spell in his relief work but he isn't fooling himself. He anticipated another big load next winter.

Those close to the president say the new program will be a sort of planned Civil Works. The planning will be done this summer with all the trials and errors to date as a guide.

A desire to reorganize the existing set-up is what lies back of Mrs. Roosevelt's request that congress give him an unearmarked appropriation. He wants to shuffle it around according to the plans now on the fire.

Whether congress will give him a lump sum is another question. This is election year and the boys on Capitol Hill are making a big noise about specifying where all money shall be spent—preferably in their home districts.

• • •

RECESS

White House spurs are being applied to congress to get an adjournment within three weeks.

If the president has his way the boys will be on their way home by June 10 at the latest. There has been some talk of May 25 and June 5 but the 10th looks like the best bet. The extra work Mr. Roosevelt has thrown at them in the way of an emergency relief appropriation and the new housing program will provide enough additional oratory to keep the Congressional Record publishing until nearly mid-June. He also is asking congress to reverse itself on the tax bill item that slapped a processing tax on cocoanut oil from the Philippines, which will occasion still more debate.

Finally there is that long-promised message on international debts. This will be withheld until the last minute and will be a mere factual report but it, too, is bound to stir up the animals.

The president has a personal reason for wanting congress out of town.

He wants to spend a couple of weeks at his Hyde Park home before embarking on his lengthy voyage to the West Indies and Hawaii. Departure date for this trip is set for June 23, from Boston harbor.

Most members of congress want to close up shop with all possible speed. They don't like Washington heat and they want to get back to their election campaigns. It's just a question of how well Vice President Garner and Speaker Rainey can ride herd on the speech-makers.

GERMANY

Our state department learns of a significant change in the attitude of Hitler's public.

Private advices received here tell that in Hitler's recent grandstand play to Berlin's two million force was used to gather his audience. Last year's multitudes assembled of their own free will but this time they had to be forced to attend. Firms announced that those not taking part in the march of two million to hear Hitler would be docked a day's pay. Other firms declared that a fine would be imposed for non-attendance.

The spectacle was impressive, but only the insiders knew how it was obtained.

NOTES

A new treasury regulation reverses old rules and adopts the presumption that no taxpayer is entitled to a depreciation allowance unless he can prove it. . . . Big corporations are squirming but the treasury expects increased revenue. . . . Congressmen are taking advantage of the drought crisis to demand a big boost in relief appropriations. . . . Treasury experts say that the decision to allow exports of gold without a license means we are giving a trial flight to a modified form of gold exchange standard before fixing a permanent gold price. . . . The department of commerce has its eye on Germany's latest big purchase of walnut trees. . . . Rifle stocks are made of walnut. . . . This year's bonus march on Washington is a flop.

WALK-OUT

Those who follow the inside of the Pennsylvania game think they know what happened among those who did go to the polls.

Their explanation is that too many of the old Pinchot supporters registered democratic this time and walked out on the republican primary The Reed followers were the staunch old republicans who are skeptical about the new deal, who stuck to the G. O. P. The stickers out-numbered the walk-outs.

Registration figures tend to substantiate this explanation. Normal democratic registration in Pennsylvania is between 850,000 and 900,000 (pre-new deal.) Last November it jumped to 1,087,890.

How many ex-republicans of the Pinchot stripe were among these jumpers no one can tell, but certainly more than half probably were ex-Pinchot republicans.

When you consider that Reed defeated Pinchot by only 115,000 or less, the point becomes important.

• • •

TANGLE

Mr. Roosevelt got his fingers in the hair of Senator Glass by announcing he did not favor the independent stock market commission idea.

Glass had been rampaging because he was left off the conference committee. Floor Leader Robinson, et al had just about quieted him down. Senator Barkley went to the extent of offering to withdraw from the conference committee if Glass was dissatisfied. That pleased Glass.

Then along came the White House disfavor of the Glass independent commission plan, which had the same effect on Glass as gasoline would on a quiet fire.

The democratic leaders believe they may get Glass under control within a week or so.

The stock market bill therefore will be delayed that long or longer.

2000 PERSONS BELIEVED GIVEN WORK BY NORTHERN ORANGE COUNTY PACKERS

FULLERTON, May 19.—With a stabilized market, gradually increasing prices and a larger quota being allowed as the market for valencias becomes established in the east, it is estimated that 2000 men and women are at work in northern Orange county moving out the citrus crop, the workers number less than in normal years of marketing the valencia orange, but it is hoped that as the quota increases, larger crews may be employed.

The first week of the marketing of valencias under the code agreement the Northern Orange County Citrus exchange was allowed 27 cars. This week allotment was 90 cars, and according to George Crawford, manager, the exchange will market 90 cars next week.

The Yorba Linda Citrus association, A. A. Adams, manager, is employing about 125 men and women in the house and 125 in the fields.

Harry Easton is manager.

Bradford Brothers' citrus house of Placentia with R. Easton as manager, is employing 70 people, divided about equally between the house and the field. The Placentia Co-operative house under management of Frank Hixon has 40 men and women in the plant and 25 field men.

Orangethorpe Citrus association managed by A. S. Swank, and operating between 50 and 60 per cent capacity, is employing 48 men and women in the house and 45 in the field. Hollingsworth, is employing 50 workers in the house and 35 in the field.

The La Habra Index, a member of the Mutual Orange Distributors organization, has 25 in the plant and 40 field men at present. T. E. Woodward is manager.

The Fullerton Co-Operative, Otto Idso manager, another M. O. D. house, has 40 in the house and 35 in the field, and the American Fruit Growers, independent, Robert Strain, manager, in packing both lemons and valencias, is employing 90 in the house and 85 in the field.

The Quality Fruit company, managed by Harry Wurgaft, an independent shipper, employs 40 men and women in the packing house and about 40 field workers.

LIQUOR LICENSES AT SUNSET, SEAL BEACH REVOKED BY BOARD

As the result of a sweeping investigation into a score of violations of state liquor sale regulations, the license of W. F. Gilliland, who operates a cafe at Sunset Beach, was revoked yesterday at a hearing in Los Angeles before the state board of equalization.

The license of Mrs. Edward Jackson, of Seal Beach, was also called for hearing, but late today no word had been received of the action taken by the board.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman recommended investigation of the cases to the board, but only these two were haled before the liquor control division for hearing. Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner represented Orange county at the hearings.

RENOVIZE PLEDGES ARE SIGNED BY 87 PROPERTY OWNERS

Eighty-seven home owners added their pledges to the Renovize improvement total yesterday, with expenditures of $15,392 promised to be made before September 1, according to reports submitted this morning by the survey men.

This makes a total of 634 pledges, aggregating $343,392 in improvements promised, for the first eight days of active canvass.

The general response to the campaign shows hearty co-operation, the Renovize men continue to report, and householders are doing all in their power to carry out the home modernization and repair inaugurated here two weeks ago as a means of creating employment, and subsequently urged as a nation-wide program by President Rosevelt.

One owner of a rental house, formerly occupied by a painter who was forced to vacate owing $50 in delinquent rental, has become sold on the Renovize idea and promised to buy necessary materials and renovize the home with a thorough painting job if he can find the former occupant to work out his debt for back rent.

From Los Angeles today came a small check to help defray costs of advertising and canvassing for the Renovize campaign, from the main office of a store operating in Santa Ana. The accompanying letter said: "It is a real pleasure in these times to hear of an intelligent organized effort such as yours and deserving of praise and whole-hearted co-operation of all."

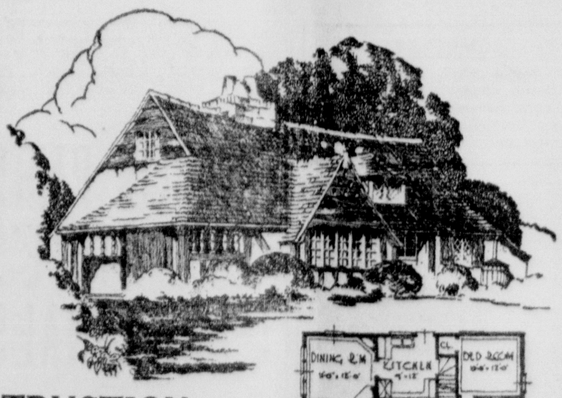

CHANGE RACKET OF WOMAN IS FAILURE

Unsuccessful attempts at working a short change racket were made yesterday by an unidentified woman wearing a pink dress. She made attempts at Mike Pandell's grocery, Sixth and Main and Hockaday, Harlow and Phillips, Spurgeon between Second and Third.

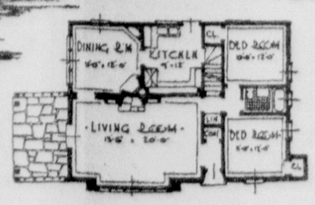

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, she made her attempt at the grocery store. An hour later she was at the automotive parts firm.

Her procedure was to walk in, lay a $5 bill and $1 bill on the counter and ask for five ones, keeping her money under her hand. When given these, she would nonchalantly say, "I guess I better have a ten," and hand her five and the ones back to the clerk.

LONDON BUSES FINE TRAINING

U. P. Correspondent Finds Cars Test For Athletes

NECESSARY TO OUTRUN STAGE

LONDON, May 19.—(UP)—After a week of experience with London buses I am hard put to understand why English track and field athletes are not the finest in the world.

A London bus affords the finest athletic training imaginable. A bit hazardous, yes, but when a man, day in and day out, can get on and off a bus in this town, there is no excuse for him ever being out-run, out-vaulted or out-hurdled.

Buses Don't Stop

Take getting on for example. In New York that's a simple task, for there, a quaint old custom calls for the bus to stop for passengers. In London buses don't stop. There are signs every tfo or three miles to say 'Buses stop here" but they're a joke. Buses stop only when (1) they run out of gas, (2) reach a dead end street, (3) the driver gets off for tea, and, (4) the conductor gets off for tea.

To catch a bus you've got to outrun it. This is no simple task, for the buses here are filled with an enormous pride as wel las horsepower, and will strain their last valve in outdistancing a fare. You can almost hear them backfire with disgust on those rare occasions when a passenger bests them.

If you try to play fair with a bus you'll lose every time. You simply have to outsmart it. Outsmarting a bus usually consists of spotting it a block or two off and getting a head start; running after the wrong bus in the hope that the one you really want will be fooled into slowing down; hiring a taxi to catch it, and taking shortcuts through alleys and courts. When I first got here I tried to be sporting and race on even terms, but gave it up after a half a dozen vain sprints from Piccadilly Circus to Marble Arch. My tactics now may not be cricket, but I'm catching one out of five.

Unfortunately, when you draw level with a bus your work is not done. You still have to get on, and this is a task that requires superb agility, timing, coordination of mind and muscle, and plain downright daring. Experienced bus boarders, and by experienced I mean those chaps in the "big ten" of bus boarders, simply make a flying leap of ten feet from the sidewalk and grab the guardrail. Your average bus boarder, however, is far less spectacular. Upon drawing even with the bus, he grasps the hand-railing firmly in both hands, utters a short but fervid prayer, and runs along a few steps until the bus—thoroughly angered now—sways suddenly to one side. This sudden sway is meant to shake the passenger loose, but usually it lifts the passenger off his feet and literally slams him onto the floor of the machine.

Once on a bus, and his umbrella rewound, a London bus fare has but one more worry—he still has to get off. This is no minor problem, for there are but two alternatives—ride to the end of the line or jump off at 50 miles an hour in traffic that would make Times Square resemble the deserted village.

Nobody ever gets off in front of the place he is going to. Anywhere within three blocks of your destination is par for the course. Within two blocks is a birdie, one block an eagle, and half a block a hole-in-one. Perhaps once or twice a year a passenger manages to get off directly in front of his destination, whereupon he is offered vaudeville contracts, given free cases of soda water, and is made a sort of public hero. I'm not sure, but I believe that's how Nelson earned his monument at Trafalgar Square.

STANFORD, CAL. JOURNEY EAST FOR I. C. A. A.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19. —(UP)—The far west sends its latest seekers of the east's most coveted intercollegiate track and field prize—the I. C. 4-A championship — eastward today when Stanford and University of California teams entrain for Philadelphia.

Stanford is counted on to retain for the Pacific coast the meet title which only once in the last decade has been won by an eastern team. With the 1933 champions, University of Southern California out of the picture because of finances, the seven-man team entered by Stanford, last year's runners-up, expects to score at least 35 points in competition with the best runners, jumpers and weight-throwers of the east. California's five-man array is not so ambitious.

In Johnny Lyman, Stanford has one of the best shot-putters in college and the only 1933 champion from the west entering the Philadelphia meet. Other Stanford point-seekers are Dunn, discus and shot-put; Mottram, javelin; Klopstock, hurdles; Deacon, pole vault; Blackman, 400 meters, and Nimmo, 800 and 1000 meters.

California looks to Bob Keisel to win the 100 and 200 meters dashes and to Bob Clark to clean up in the broad jump. Other Golden Bear entries are Fowler, two-miler; Mackey, weights, and Coe, hurdles.

The Westerners are due to arrive in Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Seaver Up Against dePaolo In Match

Injuries Keep Paul and Gilbert Shelved

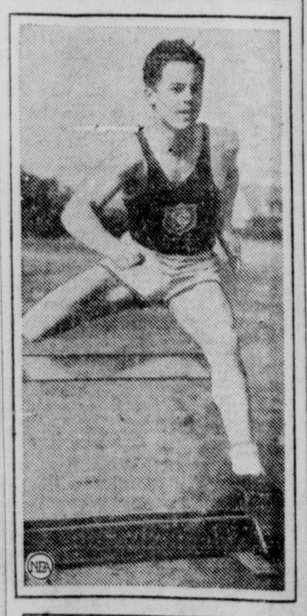

Santa Ana's contribution to the University of Southern California track and field team is hors de combat to the extent that their absense may keep Troy from the N. C. A. A. title for which it is gunning June 22, 23 when that classic is held in Los Angeles coliseum for the first time in history.

Norm Paul and Doyle Gilbert are those Saints who were injured early in the year and kept out of competition.

Paul, who ranked next only to Glen Hardin of Louisiana State in the low hurdles last year, irritated an old muscle injury in his leg in a practice session before the season started. Rather than chance permanent injury, he was kept out of competition this season.

INJURED

Norm Paul, low-hurdling fiend, has been withheld from competition this season because of an old muscle injury.

HONOR GUEST

Norm Paul will be the guest of honor at the final meeting of the Orange County Men's Trojan club on Monday, May 28, in James cafe. His coach, Dean Cromwell, will accompany him.

Gilbert, premier broad-jumper, had been ailing all last season in spite of the fact that he placed in the I. C. 4A. meet. Last fall he underwent an appendicitis operation which necessitated his temporary abandonment of track. He will be back next spring with two years of eligibility remaining. In their stead is slender, wavy-haired Ray Cartwright, the smooth-striding freshman 880 star. Cartwright was one of the most versatile foot-racers on Eddie Leahy's yearling aggregation with the following approximate times to his credit: 100, 10.2; 220, 22 flat; 440, 50 flat; 880, 1:56.6, and mile, 4:33.

Ross Bush, national interscholastic record-holder of the half mile mark from Texas, paired with Cartwright to form one of the most powerful half-mile duos in the country. As varsity men next year they will be teamed with

FAVORED PAIRS REACH STATE'S TENNIS FINALS

SANTA BARBARA, May 19. —(UP)—The 44th Pacific Coast Men's Doubles tennis championship moved into the quarter-final round today with favored teams still in the running.

Jack Tidball and Dr. Gerald Bartosh of Los Angeles prepared for a hard tussle when they met Belote and Stratford, two fellow-townsmen. Another match of interest featured Gerald Stratford and Philip Neer, San Francisco's entry, and Ben Dey and Seward of Stanford.

Tidball and Bartosh survived the earlier round by defeating Conrad and Carlin of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0. Neer and Stratford escaped elimination but only after a fierce battle with Sam Gorham and Tommy Cram, Santa Barbara, winning 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

Donald Budge and Gene Mako, youthful stars, won handily from W. Koury and H. Bond, 6-0, 6-2, 6-0, and met Jones and Bixler, Los Angeles team, in a quarter-finals match. R. Casey and W. Bates routed Larry Hall and G. Weeshoff, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, and were matched against Scholtz and Westsmith, another Los Angeles team, today. The semi-finals were scheduled for this afternoon.

Jim Coates Overcomes Four-Run Handicap In Nicking Fullerton Nine

By EDMUND C. WEST

After spotting Fullerton four runs in the first inning, Santa Ana came from behind to win its second National league ball game of the season, 7-4, at Fullerton last night.

Jimmy Coates, the Stars' sensational young pitcher, featured the struggle with another brilliant piece of relief slinging after Ira DeBusk, Santa Ana's starting nominee, had been shelled from the knoll before he could get it warm.

Coming into the quarrel with Fullerton out in front, 4-0, by dint of two infield singles, an error and Sam Miller's home run down the first base line, Coates proceeded to retire the side and then hold the Bellhops in chancery the rest of the way. He struck out 11, and never was in trouble aside from a mild Fullerton gesture in the eighth caused Jim to call on his reserve and mow down two in a row with the bases jammed.

Reversed Decision Causes Row

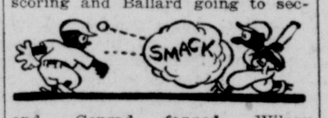

Fullerton's first inning uprising was given impetus by a trick decision at home plate by Umpire Campbell, which caused the Stars, one and all, to protest long, loud and vigorously. Sanders opened the Bellhops' first time at bat with an infield hit and Bell followed with another safe bouncer. Hemus and Barrett popped out. Harnois grounded sharply to Preble, at second base, who fumbled long enough to give Harnois a life. Sanders rounded third and made a break for home when Preble had trouble picking up the pill.

The play at the plate was close

under any circumstances. Umpire Campbell called Sanders out, and the Santa Ana players hustled to the bench while Fullerton's athletes swarmed around the hapless Campbell and gave him an argument. Campbell finally appealed to Base Umpire Marshall, who was at second base when the play occurred, and Campbell overruled himself when Marshall told him he thought Sanders was safe. Another and even longer disturbance followed, with the Stars giving Campbell "the works" in vain. When play finally was resumed, Miller blasted the first ball pitched down the first base line for a homer that scored both Bell and Harnois ahead of him.

Preble Hits Trick Homer

Santa Ana tied the count in the fourth when Sears tripled down the third base line and Conrad skied to right, and pushed across the three winning runs in the fifth, with the kindly assistance of an automobile, carrying loud-speaker equipment, which was parked about 15 yards off the playing field.

Denney singled and Young beat out a bunt to start the rally, and a passed ball sent them scurrying to third and second, respectively. Daley flied out but Preble dropped a twisting Texas leaguer into shallow right field that scored Denney and Young, and let Preble circle the bases for a cheap home run when the ball caromed off under the aforesaid automobile.

Both clubs were impotent thereafter until the eighth when Coates "cracked down" on Fullerton's belated bid for victory. With one away, Bell got his third single of the evening which Hemus followed with a hit to right, taking an extra base on Sears' conservative throw-in. Barrett walked, loading the bags, but Coates forced Harnois to pop up and then fanned Miller, the home run hitter, on three pitched balls.

Santa Ana plays Anaheim here Tuesday night.

Mickey Walker To Desert Heavy Division

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(UP) — Mickey Walker is giving up the struggle to attain prominence as a heavyweight and is going back to reclaim his middleweight championship.

His manager, Jack Kearns, said Walker was tired of trying to pit his strength against the bigger fellows. Walker still can make the 160-pound weight limit, Kearns believes, despite the fact he has been scaling around 172 in recent bouts.

FORMER SAINTS BID FOR GRID POSTS AT TROY

Falling into step at the end of a long line of Santa Ana football greats who have turned in brilliant records for the University of Southern California are Allan "Red" Kidder and Doug Hinesly, members of the 1931 Southern California prep eleven that thrashed Covina 34-0 in winning title.

Both performed on the Trobabe outfit last fall that went undefeated. Kidder was removed from his ball-carrying position to hold down a blocking - half berth. Hinesly lined up as a running guard, the key of the Trojan system of attack under the Howard Jones style of play.

In practice this spring, both showed up well and turned in fine games in the intra-squad exhibit that climaxed the month of drilling. Kidder was switched to the line where he played a left end position, the one normally under the supervision of Capt. Julie Bescos. Kidder's stubborn fight and smart defensive play marked him as a likely-looking flankman, and he may be paired up with Bescos next fall to cover the wink posts.

It's been so long since the home folks have heard from Al Reboin that the home folks were wondering what in the deuce happened to him after his sparkling career as a football and track star at Snta Ana high.

Al ws put in a tough spot the minute he matriculated at Troy. He had been a ball-carrying quarterback with the Saints, but there were men in front of him whom he could hardly expect to beat out, Homer Griffith, Orv Mohler, Cotton Warburton, Bill Howard, etc. He was transferred to a blocking-half job, a strange position. Last year he finally got the swing of the bloomin' thing and came along fast toward the end of the year. Next year the home folks will hear from Al who will be coming home wearing a maroon-and-gold sweater.

Reboin had the same difficulty in track. He was too short-legged to pace even time in the hurdles, his specialty, so he forsaken them for football.

It might be well for Max Baer to quit clowning.

His latest crack is that Primo Carnera must go out in six rounds in the Garden Bowl on June 14, due to the new champion having to keep a Broadway date as a master of ceremonies.

One would think that Baer, with a golden opportunity before him, would stick to his last, but he isn't. The challenger is to make radio rehearsals and appearances three times weekly right up to the day of the fight.

"Of course, Max isn't going to put in three hours a day rehearsing when serious training gets under way," says Ancil Hoffman, his manager. "He will do his rehearsing after he has worked and rested. Broadcasting will take his mind off the fight."

That apparently is exactly where many suspect Baer's mind is now—off the fight. Fight fans would rather that the Californian spend his spare moments soaking his hands in brine than trying to make himself expressive before a microphone.

Baer canot be blamed for getting the money but the same kind of coin won't be forthcoming if Carnera boxes his ears off, which is what so many learned boxing men have an idea the Italian will do.

BUSINESS-LIKE CHAMPION

Carnera isn't doing much talking the extent of his pre-battle statement to date being, "Preemo feex Cuckoo," but those close to the Venetian Leviathan believe him to be more confident of a decisive victory than he has ever been.

A year ago, in the role of challenger, Carnera spoke freely, and told why he was confident he would defeat Jack Sharkey. But the big boy is mad this trip, and doing a lot of thinking.

Da Preem possesses a determination that borders on animosity. The naturally friendly giant dislikes Baer. He has been riled by the frequent jibes of the Butterfly Butcher Boy.

Baer is going to fight a big, desperate man. If Da Preem can develop any of the old Dempsey "killer" instinct, he will show it in his match with the Livermore Larruper.

Because of the business-like way he is going about his training, his present excellent condition, his improvement as a boxer, continued ring activity, and his quiet antipathy for his opponent, it is not presuming too much to predict that Carnera will turn in the best fight of his life."

CARNERA HAS BEEN ACTIVE

At this time Carnera is claiming only one advantage over Baer, and he lays great stress on this.

"Nothing keeps a fighter in condition as much as fighting," says the titleholder. "Baer has not been in action since June 8 of last year, and it was only recently that he put on boxing gloves for the first time since he knocked out Max Schmeling.

"Since he fought his last fight, I have had 36 rounds of actual competition—six with Sharkey and 15 each with Paulino Uzcudun and Tommy Loughran.

"I was given little credit for the Paulino and Loughran bouts. Because I am big, everybody expected me to knock out Paulino and Loughran. That's human nature, but, I ask you, who is knocking out either? Paulino gives you nothing to hit but the top of a very hard head, and Loughran knows all the defensive tricks."

Without doing any too much training and 10 pounds overweight, Carnera stepped 15 rounds against Loughran like a middleweight.

U. P. Correspondent Finds Cars Test For Athletes

NECESSARY TO OUTRUN STAGE

LONDON, May 19.—(UP)—After a week of experience with London buses I am hard put to understand why English track and field athletes are not the finest in the world.

A London bus affords the finest athletic training imaginable. A bit hazardous, yes, but when a man, day in and day out, can get on and off a bus in this town, there is no excuse for him ever being out-run, out-vaulted or out-hurdled.

Buses Don't Stop

Take getting on for example. In New York that's a simple task, for there, a quaint old custom calls for the bus to stop for passengers. In London buses don't stop. There are signs every tfo or three miles to say 'Buses stop here" but they're a joke. Buses stop only when (1) they run out of gas, (2) reach a dead end street, (3) the driver gets off for tea, and, (4) the conductor gets off for tea.

To catch a bus you've got to outrun it. This is no simple task, for the buses here are filled with an enormous pride as wel las horsepower, and will strain their last valve in outdistancing a fare. You can almost hear them backfire with disgust on those rare occasions when a passenger bests them.

If you try to play fair with a bus you'll lose every time. You simply have to outsmart it. Outsmarting a bus usually consists of spotting it a block or two off and getting a head start; running after the wrong bus in the hope that the one you really want will be fooled into slowing down; hiring a taxi to catch it, and taking shortcuts through alleys and courts. When I first got here I tried to be sporting and race on even terms, but gave it up after a half a dozen vain sprints from Piccadilly Circus to Marble Arch. My tactics now may not be cricket, but I'm catching one out of five.

Unfortunately, when you draw level with a bus your work is not done. You still have to get on, and this is a task that requires superb agility, timing, coordination of mind and muscle, and plain downright daring. Experienced bus boarders, and by experienced I mean those chaps in the "big ten" of bus boarders, simply make a flying leap of ten feet from the sidewalk and grab the guardrail. Your average bus boarder, however, is far less spectacular. Upon drawing even with the bus, he grasps the hand-railing firmly in both hands, utters a short but fervid prayer, and runs along a few steps until the bus—thoroughly angered now—sways suddenly to one side. This sudden sway is meant to shake the passenger loose, but usually it lifts the passenger off his feet and literally slams him onto the floor of the machine.

Once on a bus, and his umbrella rewound, a London bus fare has but one more worry—he still has to get off. This is no minor problem, for there are but two alternatives—ride to the end of the line or jump off at 50 miles an hour in traffic that would make Times Square resemble the deserted village.

Nobody ever gets off in front of the place he is going to. Anywhere within three blocks of your destination is par for the course. Within two blocks is a birdie, one block an eagle, and half a block a hole-in-one. Perhaps once or twice a year a passenger manages to get off directly in front of his destination, whereupon he is offered vaudeville contracts, given free cases of soda water, and is made a sort of public hero. I'm not sure, but I believe that's how Nelson earned his monument at Trafalgar Square.

Injuries Keep Paul and Gilbert Shelved

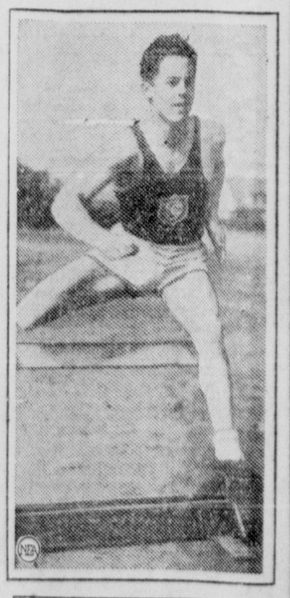

Santa Ana's contribution to the University of Southern California track and field team is hors de combat to the extent that their absense may keep Troy from the N. C. A. A. title for which it is gunning June 22, 23 when that classic is held in Los Angeles coliseum for the first time in history.

Norm Paul and Doyle Gilbert are those Saints who were injured early in the year and kept out of competition.

Paul, who ranked next only to Glen Hardin of Louisiana State in the low hurdles last year, irritated an old muscle injury in his leg in a practice session before the season started. Rather than chance permanent injury, he was kept out of competition this season.

INJURED

Norm Paul, low-hurdling fiend, has been withheld from competition this season because of an old muscle injury.

HONOR GUEST

Norm Paul will be the guest of honor at the final meeting of the Orange County Men's Trojan club on Monday, May 28, in James cafe. His coach, Dean Cromwell, will accompany him.

Gilbert, premier broad-jumper, had been ailing all last season in spite of the fact that he placed in the I. C. 4A. meet. Last fall he underwent an appendicitis operation which necessitated his temporary abandonment of track. He will be back next spring with two years of eligibility remaining.

In their stead is slender, wavy-haired Ray Cartwright, the smooth-striding freshman 880 star. Cartwright was one of the most versatile foot-racers on Eddie Leahy's yearling aggregation with the following approximate times to his credit: 100, 10.2; 220, 22 flat; 440, 50 flat; 880, 1:56.6, and mile, 4:33.

Ross Bush, national interscholastic record-holder of the half mile mark from Texas, paired with Cartwright to form one of the most powerful half-mile duos in the country. As varsity men next year they will be teamed with

FAVORED PAIRS REACH STATE'S TENNIS FINALS

SANTA BARBARA, May 19. —(UP)—The 44th Pacific Coast Men's Doubles tennis championship moved into the quarter-final round today with favored teams still in the running.

Jack Tidball and Dr. Gerald Bartosh of Los Angeles prepared for a hard tussle when they met Belote and Stratford, two fellow-townsmen. Another match of interest featured Gerald Stratford and Philip Neer, San Francisco's entry, and Ben Dey and Seward of Stanford.

Tidball and Bartosh survived the earlier round by defeating Conrad and Carlin of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0. Neer and Stratford escaped elimination but only after a fierce battle with Sam Gorham and Tommy Cram, Santa Barbara, winning 6-4, 7-5, 8-6, 6-3.

Donald Budge and Gene Mako, youthful stars, won handily from W. Koury and H. Bond, 6-0, 6-2, 6-0, and met Jones and Bixler, Los Angeles team, in a quarter-finals match. R. Casey and W. Bates routed Larry Hall and G. Weeshoff, Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, and were matched against Scholtz and Westsmith, another Los Angeles team, today. The semi-finals were scheduled for this afternoon.

STANFORD, CAL. JOURNEY EAST FOR I. C. A. A.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19. —(UP)—The far west sends its latest seekers of the east's most coveted intercollegiate track and field prize—the I. C. 4-A championship — eastward today when Stanford and University of California teams entrain for Philadelphia.

Stanford is counted on to retain for the Pacific coast the meet title which only once in the last decade has been won by an eastern team. With the 1933 champions, University of Southern California out of the picture because of finances, the seven-man team entered by Stanford, last year's runners-up, expects to score at least 35 points in competition with the best runners, jumpers and weight-throwers of the east. California's five-man array is not so ambitious.

In Johnny Lyman, Stanford has one of the best shot-putters in college and the only 1933 champion from the west entering the Philadelphia meet. Other Stanford point-seekers are Dunn, discus and shot-put; Mottram, javelin; Klopstock, hurdles; Deacon, pole vault; Blackman, 400 meters, and Nimmo, 800 and 1000 meters.

California looks to Bob Keisel to win the 100 and 200 meters dashes and to Bob Clark to clean up in the broad jump. Other Golden Bear entries are Fowler, two-miler; Mackey, weights, and Coe, hurdles.

The Westerners are due to arrive in Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Seaver Up Against dePaolo In Match

Jim Coates Overcomes Four-Run Handicap In Nicking Fullerton Nine

By EDMUND C. WEST

After spotting Fullerton four runs in the first inning, Santa Ana came from behind to win its second National league ball game of the season, 7-4, at Fullerton last night.

Jimmy Coates, the Stars' sensational young pitcher, featured the struggle with another brilliant piece of relief slinging after Ira DeBusk, Santa Ana's starting nominee, had been shelled from the knoll before he could get it warm.

Coming into the quarrel with Fullerton out in front, 4-0, by dint of two infield singles, an error and Sam Miller's home run down the first base line, Coates proceeded to retire the side and then hold the Bellhops in chancery the rest of the way. He struck out 11, and never was in trouble aside from a mild Fullerton gesture in the eighth caused Jim to call on his reserve and mow down two in a row with the bases jammed.

Reversed Decision Causes Row

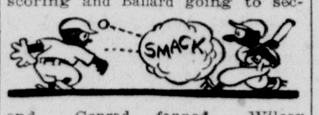

Fullerton's first inning uprising was given impetus by a trick decision at home plate by Umpire Campbell, which caused the Stars, one and all, to protest long, loud and vigorously. Sanders opened the Bellhops' first time at bat with an infield hit and Bell followed with another safe bouncer. Hemus and Barrett popped out. Harnois grounded sharply to Preble, at second base, who fumbled long enough to give Harnois a life. Sanders rounded third and made a break for home when Preble had trouble picking up the pill.

The play at the plate was close

under any circumstances. Umpire Campbell called Sanders out, and the Santa Ana players hustled to the bench while Fullerton's athletes swarmed around the hapless Campbell and gave him an argument. Campbell finally appealed to Base Umpire Marshall, who was at second base when the play occurred, and Campbell overruled himself when Marshall told him he thought Sanders was safe. Another and even longer disturbance followed, with the Stars giving Campbell "the works" in vain. When play finally was resumed, Miller blasted the first ball pitched down the first base line for a homer that scored both Bell and Harnois ahead of him.

Preble Hits Trick Homer

Santa Ana tied the count in the fourth when Sears tripled down the third base line and Conrad skied to right, and pushed across the three winning runs in the fifth, with the kindly assistance of an automobile, carrying loudspeaker equipment, which was parked about 15 yards off the playing field.

Denney singled and Young beat out a bunt to start the rally, and a passed ball sent them scurrying to third and second, respectively. Daley flied out but Preble dropped a twisting Texas leaguer into shallow right field that scored Denney and Young, and let Preble circle the bases for a cheap home run when the ball caromed off under the aforesaid automobile.

Both clubs were impotent thereafter until the eighth when Coates "cracked down" on Fullerton's belated bid for victory. With one away, Bell got his third single of the evening which Hemus followed with a hit to right, taking an extra base on Sears' conservative throw-in. Barrett walked, loading the bags, but Coates forced Harnois to pop up and then fanned Miller, the home run hitter, on three pitched balls.

Santa Ana plays Anaheim here Tuesday night.

Mickey Walker To Desert Heavy Division

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(UP) — Mickey Walker is giving up the struggle to attain prominence as a heavyweight and is going back to reclaim his middleweight championship.

His manager, Jack Kearns, said Walker was tired of trying to pit his strength against the bigger fellows. Walker still can make the 160-pound weight limit, Kearns believes, despite the fact he has been scaling around 172 in recent bouts.

FORMER SAINTS BID FOR GRID POSTS AT TROY

Falling into step at the end of a long line of Santa Ana football greats who have turned in brilliant records for the University of Southern California are Allan "Red" Kidder and Doug Hiresly, members of the 1931 Southern California prep eleven that thrashed Covina 34-0 in winning title.

Both performed on the Trobabe outfit last fall that went undefeated. Kidder was removed from his ball-carrying position to hold down a blocking - half berth. Hinesly lined up as a running guard, the key of the Trojan system of attack under the Howard Jones style of play.

In practice this spring, both showed up well and turned in fine games in the intra-squad exhibit that climaxed the month of drilling. Kidder was switched to the line where he played a left end position, the one normally under the supervision of Capt. Julie Bescos. Kidder's stubborn fight and smart defensive play marked him as a likely-looking flankman, and he may be paired up with Bescos next fall to cover the wink posts.

It's been so long since the home folks have heard from Al Reboin that the home folks were wondering what in the deuce happened to him after his sparkling career as a football and track star at Snta Ana high.

Al ws put in a tough spot the minute he matriculated at Troy. He had been a ball-carrying quarterback with the Saints, but there were men in front of him whom he could hardly expect to beat out, Homer Griffith, Orv Mohler, Cotton Warburton, Bill Howard, etc. He was transferred to a blocking-half job, a strange position. Last year he finally got the swing of the bloomin' thing and came along fast toward the end of the year. Next year the home folks will hear from Al who will be coming home wearing a maroon-and-gold sweater.

Reboin had the same difficulty in track. He was too short-legged to pace even time in the hurdles, his specialty, so he forsaked them for football.

CONFERENCE OF 4-H HEADS AT LAGUNA BEGUN

LA HABRA, May 19.—Opening with a beach party, the fifth annual conference of 4-H leaders, got under way Friday evening, at Laguna Beach, with the Orange county council of leaders as the hosts. Registration was made at Cottage City where arrangements were made in advance to take care of the visitors for the three days of the conference.

Following the late afternoon swimming a wienie bake and beach supper was served at 6:30 and was attended by 150 representatives from Riverside, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Imperial and Orange counties.

Entertainment was provided by F. A. Bumgartner of Alamitos, who furnished several beach games. Mrs. E. J. Mykrantz of San Diego county demonstrated the making and use of camp stoves from large tin cans. She baked biscuits before the camp fire in reflector ovens and also fried bacon and eggs in these improvised stoves. Community singing was led by W. Metcalf, state forestry agent for the 4-H and Metcalf and Glen Waterhouse, assistant state agent of 4-H of this district, sang a duet.

Adjourning to the school auditorium, Prof. Frank L. Barrows, consulting music leader for Orange county 4-H clubs, presented his Orange County 4-H band and Miss numbers by her pupils. Artists appearing on the program were all from La Habra.

The conference is being held today in the school auditorium starting at 8:30 a.m. The afternoon session will be divided into groups for special tours and project inspection.

A dinner dance is scheduled for tonight at the La Casa del Camino and a boat ride in Newport harbor Sunday will conclude the conference program for this year.

NEW HEADS OF BREA P.-T. A. ARE INSTALLED

BREA, May 19.—The three C's in education, instead of the proverbial three R's, were stressed in the talk givenby Arthur Corey, assistant county superintedent of schools, to members and friends of the Brea P.-T. A. in the Brea grammar school auditorium this week.

Character, culture and citizenship, Corey declared, are the essentials of education today, the system of which must move along and keep pace with the ever changing, ever progressing phases of life.

During that time the membership of the association has been brought up from a small group to a roll of 218. Fanning presented Mrs. Bickel with the past-president's pin, the gift of the association. Mrs. Greer mentioned that Brea's membership is the second largest in the county, the Fullerton high school association having one more member on its roll.

BEACH POLICE JOIN DRIVE TO ENFORCE REGULATIONS

NEWPORT BEACH, May 19.—Law and order will be strictly the order of the day in Newport Beach and Balboa, following the announcement today by Chief of Police R. R. Hodgkinson that Newport police have been instructed to cooperate in every possible way with the campaign to stop rowdyism and disregard of the law in the beach city.

Regulations have been issued to the pleasure spots of the beach and to restaurants and soft drink stands stating that unnecessary noise or violation of city ordinances concerning hours of closing or conduct of the places will not be tolerated. Speeders, drunks or violators of traffic ordinances will be prosecuted immediately.

Hodgkinson, saying that the type of publicity received for the campaign has been very helpful, went on record today as backing the "stop rowdyism" campaign to the limit. His statement follows:

"We are glad to be able to perform our duty here without being hampered by any undue appeal to public prejudice. We will make Newport Beach and the community as pleasant and as inviting to the public as possible. We do not intend, however, to permit any violation of our laws, and will prosecute offenders against good taste and the welfare of our community without discrimination."

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

AIFA FICTION FEATURE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Donna Gabriel and Madeline Sidall who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Renfroe's circus.. When Madeline's grandfather who is blind asks her to spend a week-end at his farm she persuades Donna to go instead. Donna, pretending to be Madeline, falls in love with Bill Siddal, Madeline's cousin.

Con David, animal trainer, is devoted to Donna but she regards him merely as a friend. Madeline loves Con and schemes to win him.

Donna falls from the trapeze and is injured. Madeline wires Bill to come for her and begs Donna to continue the impersonation. Bill takes Donna to the farm to recuperate. Mrs. Planter, the housekeeper, is suspicious of the girl.

Donna grows stronger and soon is able to get about in a wheel chair. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI

Ned Trafford was surly and belligerent. Irritable without provocation. Twice Renfroe had caught him under the influence of liquor and threatened him with a "notice" if he ever caught him drinking again. But Trafford avoided Madeline and, as the days sped by, her fear of him lessened and gradually died.

She concluded the canvasman was more afraid of what she might say or do than she was afraid of him. Nevertheless Madeline remained convinced that Trafford had been responsible for Donna's fall and she told Con David this. The result was that Con hated Trafford with a deadly, silent hatred that made him careless and bitter and that helped him earn his living.

Renfroe had watched Madeline performing on the trapeze alone and, since business was bad and there was a prospect of Donna's return, he had decided to let Madeline remain in the show as a "single." One Gabriel sister did not make a feature act, but the cut in salary helped a little.

Madeline knew Con's interest in her was due to the fact that he could get news of Donna through her, but his very indifference only spurred Madeline's determination to win hiw.

In every conceivable manner she contrived to keep him near her. She made rarebits or sandwiches and invited Con into her stateroom to share them with her, though she knew Renfroe would "read the riot act" if he heard of it.

During every performance she watched the animal trainer put his "cats" through their paces and she never failed to compliment him on his daring when he left the arena, his white silk shirt clinging to his body and beads of perpiration about his white lips.

"There isn't an act in the world that can equal it, Con!" she would exclaim estatically. "I simply marvey at you! I could watch you all day, even though my teeth chatter with fright for you."

She hovered over him like a mother, watching for a loose button or a dangling bit of braid on his coat. As though it were her duty to perform such tasks, she demanded that he hand the garments over to her to mend.

When the new tiger, a gorgeously beautiful Bengal, gave Con a vicious scratch on the wrist Madeline changed the dressing on the wound daily for a week, although Con insisted the injury was nothing.

He was flattered by these attentions. The string of Donna's repulsion still rankled, though he loved her with all the fervor of his Latin temperament. Con was perfectly aware of Madeline's love for him, as was every one else in the circus. He accepted it as homage due his position as the star performer of the troupe.

* * *

Now and then he invited her to dinner at a hotel or restaurant as a change from the fare in the mess tent. Madeline always made the most of these occasions, combing her hair as Donna had worn hers, dressing as nearly as possible like Donna and aping her mannerisms until the man was a trifle bewildered. He wondered why, when the two girls were so alike, he should love one and not the other.

A month went by, then six weeks. The heat became intense. Under the tents the air was heavy, almost intolerable. The poor anicals forced to stay in small quarters, suffered and snarled and roared and spit. The stateroms in the Pullman cars were stifling. Electric fans merely stirred the fetid, stifling air.

Under the glar of a thousand blazing lights the performers tried to concentrate on their numbers, to forget their discomfort and put forth their best efforts, but the acts moved slowly and without pep. A grizzly bear sickened and died. Renfroe tore his hair and wailed that there was a jinx on the show and they might as well close.

His wife, who had heard the same wail many times, for once listened to him. Then she said, "Well, why don't you stop beefing and get rid of the jinx?"

"I wish to God I could! If you can tell me who it is I'll fire him quick enough."

"Maybe she is, but she's a trouble-maker. Look at the way she's trailing Con! Look how she strung along Ned Trafford—"

"What?"

"I'm not a gossip, but I'm not as blind as you are and I've seen a few things. I'd be glad to see Madeline go. It's not because she's a 'single' but because she's no good."

"If I thought that, I'd fire her quick as shooting. She was darned decent about going on with the act alone and—shucks, are you sure she and Trafford—?"

"Why do you suppose he's gone to pieces the way he has? He was crazy about Madeline but he knew enough to keep his distance if she hadn't led him on. If you don't believe me, ask anyone in the show. And watch her with Con!"

Fortunately for Madeline, this conversation took place after an afternoon performance while she and Con were sitting at a table in a Chinese restaurant some distance from the lot. Madeline had received a letter that day written by Donna herself, the first letter she had written since the accident. Madeline produced it proudly and waved it before Con's eyes.

"Why the heck does she address you as Donna?" he demanded, his face darkening as it always did when the other girl's name was mentioned.

"That's a long story, darling. I6ll tell you some day when I feel like confessing. Wouldn't you like to read what she has to say?"

"No. Maybe she'll write to me now."

Madeline frowned. She studied the inlaid pearl of the table before her and her quick wits began to dance. "No, Con," she said slowly, "I don't believe she will. I don't think you'll ever see Donna again."

"What makes you say that? She's coming back to the show, isn't she?"

"No, she isn't."

"You mean the injury was worse than we thought?"

"No. She—oh, Con, darling, I hate to tell you! I know how you love Donna and I know how terrible this will hurt you. But you knew you never had a chance with her, didn't you? You knew that, while she was fond of you and always liked you, she wouldn't ever think of marrying you. You'll just have to square your shoulders and—"

"Cut out the sob stuff!" he broke in harshly. "Spill it!"

"She's going to be married."

"To the cousin?"

"He's my cousin, not hers. Yes, they're going to be married."

Con sat motionless, his face slowly growing whiter and whiter. His hands gripped the arms of his chair and the knuckles stood out in ridges. Then he laughed. "Well, that's that! What do we eat—chop suey or chow mein?"

"You mean you don't care?" Madeline cried hysterically. "You really don't care?"

"No woman is going to ruin my appetite," Con answered.

But Madeline, trembling over the success of her falsehood, noticed that his food left the table untouched. She suggested that they return to the circus lot before it was really necessary to do so. She had scored a triumph, but if Con should write to Donna to confirm her statement, the situation might not be so rosy. A long walk in a shadowy lane was more conducive to sentiment than a warm Chinese restaurant.

Renfroe was waiting for them at the dressing tent. "Come over here, Madeline," he said. "I want to talk to you."

* * *

The ever-present fear of receiving a two week's notice gripped the girl. She looked appealingly toward Con. "What's the matter, Chief?" the animal trainer asked. "You don't object to Madeline stepping out with me once in a while, do you?"

"Not exactly. But she's the only girl alone in this show and she has to watch where she steps. I've been thinking it over. It's a responsibility — they're talking. I think you're a swell kid, Madeline, but hell! I broke the rule never to have single girls in the show when I kept you on. It's too much trouble and I believe—"

"Who's been talking?" Con demanded.

"Er—everyone. You and Madeline are pretty thick. Then—"

"Why shouldn't we be?"

"Hush, Con!" Madeline interrupted with a wan smile. "If I'm not wanted, I'll go. I thought when I did everything I could after poor Donna was hurt it would be appreciated, but I guess it wasn't."

"Sure I appreciate what you've done, Madeline, but—oh, if you were older and maybe a little more straight-laced—"

"Listen here," Con caught the other man's coat sleeve. "You mean they're talking about Madeline and me? Well, go tell the lousy gossips we're going to be married."

"Con!"

"And if that doesn't suit them you can get a new animal act—and pronto!"

"Keep your shirt on, Con," Renfroe cajoled. "If you and Madeline are engaged and all this is on the level we'll be tickled pink. No one thought either of you were serious, that's all. And you knew a girl—"

"Yes, I know. It makes me sick the way nosy-bodies meddle with every one else's business. I thought you had more sense. I've a notion to leave your show anyway and—"

"Now, now, Con!" the manager soothed. "I've got to tell Mom the news. Gosh, she'll be surprised."

As Renfroe disappeared into the dressing tent Madeline whirled upon Con.

"Did you mean that? Or did you just say it to save my job?"

"Why shouldn't I mean it? If you'll have me, knowing I don't love you and probably never will, we might make a go of marriage. I swear I'll always be on the level with you."

"Oh, Con," Madeline cried, nestling against the arm that hung limply at his side. "I love you so much I'd marry you even if you wanted to put me right into your cage of cats."

He looked at her, half-startled. "That's an idea! That IS an idea. I'll make you part of my act!"

BEACH POLICE JOIN DRIVE TO ENFORCE REGULATIONS

NEWPORT BEACH, May 19.—Law and order will be strictly the order of the day in Newport Beach and Balboa, following the announcement today by Chief of Police R. R. Hodgkinson that Newport police have been instructed to cooperate in every possible way with the campaign to stop rowdyism and disregard of the law in the beach city.

Regulations have been issued to the pleasure spots of the beach and to restaurants and soft drink stands stating that unnecessary noise or violation of city ordinances concerning hours of closing or conduct of the places will not be tolerated. Speeders, drunks or violators of traffic ordinances will be prosecuted immediately.

Hodgkinson, saying that the type of publicity received for the campaign has been very helpful, went on record today as backing the "stop rowdyism" campaign to the limit. His statement follows:

"We are glad to be able to perform our duty here without being hampered by any undue appeal to public prejudice. We will make Newport Beach and the community as pleasant and as inviting to the public as possible. We do not intend, however, to permit any violation of our laws, and will prosecute offenders against good taste and the welfare of our community without discrimination."

NEW ROAD WILL BE TOURED BY AUTO CARAVAN

NEWPORT BEACH, May 19. — Promoting goodwill between the coast cities and those of the interior, a caravan of more than 40 automobiles carrying aproximately 200 passengers will tour the new Ortega highway next week.

Other prominent persons in the group will include G. C. MacLeod, secretary of the Newport Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. May Jackson, of Huntington Beach; George Portus, of Laguna; S. A. Meyers, editor and publisher of the Newport Harbor Publishing company; and C. G. Huston.

The affair is being sponsored by the Orange County Coast association. The cars will carry banners stating the merits of their home cities thus doing a bit of advertising as well as promoting goodwill between the various towns.

Forty persons from Elsinor will join the caravan at Conservation Point. From there it will be ushered into Riverside where it will be met by Supervisor George Jeffrey of Orange county and Supervisor Stanfield of Riverside county. A basket luncheon will be served in Fairmount Park.

Letters have been received by Secretary MacLeod from Fontana, Upland, Ontario, Pomona, Riverside, and other cities, inviting the group to stop in each of those places. The mayors and chamber officials will extend greetings to each of the cities the tour passes through.

NEA FICTION FEA ©1934 NEA SERVICE, INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Donna Gabriel and Madeline Siddall who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Renfroe's circus. When Madeline's grandfather who is blind asks her to spend a week-end at his farm she persuades Donna to go instead. Donna, pretending to be Madeline, falls in love with Bill Siddal, Madeline's cousin.

Con David, animal trainer, is devoted to Donna but she regards him merely as a friend. Madeline loves Con and schemes to win him.

Donna falls from the trapeze and is injured. Madeline wires Bill to come for her and begs Donna to continue the impersonation. Bill takes Donna to the farm to recuperate. Mrs. Planter, the housekeeper, is suspicious of the girl.

Donna grows stronger and soon is able to get about in a wheel chair. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI

Ned Trafford was surly and belligerent. Irritable without provocation. Twice Renfroe had caught him under the influence of liquor and threatened him with a "notice" if he ever caught him drinking again. But Trafford avoided Madeline and, as the days sped by, her fear of him lessened and gradually died.

She concluded the canvasman was more afraid of what she might say or do than she was afraid of him. Nevertheless Madeline remained convinced that Trafford had been responsible for Donna's fall and she told Con David this. The result was that Con hated Trafford with a deadly, silent hatred that made him careless and bitter and that helped him earn his living.

Renfroe had watched Madeline performing on the trapeze alone and, since business was bad and there was a prospect of Donna's return, he had decided to let Madeline remain in the show as a "single." One Gabriel sister did not make a feature act, but the cut in salary helped a little.

Madeline knew Con's interest in her was due to the fact that he could get news of Donna through her, but his very indifference only spurred Madeline's determination to win hiw.

In every conceivable manner she contrived to keep him near her. She made rarebits or sandwiches and invited Con into her stateroom to share them with her, though she knew Renfroe would "read the riot act" if he heard of it.

During every performance she watched the animal trainer put his "cats" through their paces and she never failed to compliment him on his daring when he left the arena, his white silk shirt clinging to his body and beads of perpiration about his white lips.

"There isn't an act in the world that can equal it, Con!" she would exclaim estatically. "I simply marvey at you! I could watch you all day, even though my teeth chatter with fright for you."

She hovered over him like a mother, watching for a loose button or a dangling bit of braid on his coat. As though it were her duty to perform such tasks, she demanded that he hand the garments over to her to mend.

When the new tiger, a gorgeously beautiful Bengal, gave Con a vicious scratch on the wrist Madeline changed the dressing on the wound daily for a week, although Con insisted the injury was nothing.

He was flattered by these attentions. The string of Donna's repulsion still rankled, though he loved her with all the fervor of his Latin temperament. Con was perfectly aware of Madeline's love for him, as was every one else in the circus. He accepted it as homage due his position as the star performer of the troupe.

* * *

Now and then he invited her to dinner at a hotel or restaurant as a change from the fare in the mess tent. Madeline always made the most of these occasions, combing her hair as Donna had worn hers, dressing as nearly as possible like Donna and aping her mannerisms until the man was a trifle bewildered. He wondered why, when the two girls were so alike, he should love one and not the other.

A month went by, then six weeks. The heat became intense. Under the tents the air was heavy, almost intolerable. The poor anicals forced to stay in small quarters, suffered and snarled and roared and spit. The stateroms in the Pullman cars were stifling. Electric fans merely stirred the fetid, stifling air.

Under the glar of a thousand blazing lights the performers tried to concentrate on their numbers, to forget their discomfort and put forth their best efforts, but the acts moved slowly and without pep. A grizzly bear sickened and died. Renfroe tore his hair and wailed that there was a jinx on the show and they might as well close.

His wife, who had heard the same wail many times, for once listened to him. Then she said, "Well, why don't you stop beefing and get rid of the jinx?"

"I wish to God I could! If you can tell me who it is I'll fire him quick enough."

"Maybe she is, but she's a trouble-maker. Look at the way she's trailing Con! Look how she strung along Ned Trafford—"

"What?"

"I'm not a gossip, but I'm not as blind as you are and I've seen a few things. I'd be glad to see Madeline go. It's not because she's a 'single' but because she's no good."

"If I thought that, I'd fire her quick as shooting. She was darned decent about going on with the act alone and—shucks, are you sure she and Trafford—?"

"Why do you suppose he's gone to pieces the way he has? He was crazy about Madeline but he knew enough to keep his distance if she hadn't led him on. If you don't believe me, ask anyone in the show. And watch her with Con!"

Fortunately for Madeline, this conversation took place after an afternoon performance while she and Con were sitting at a table in a Chinese restaurant some distance from the lot. Madeline had received a letter that day written by Donna herself, the first letter she had written since the accident. Madeline produced it proudly and waved it before Con's eyes.

"Why the heck does she address you as Donna?" he demanded, his face darkening as it always did when the other girl's name was mentioned.

"That's a long story, darling. I'll tell you some day when I feel like confessing. Wouldn't you like to read what she has to say?"

"No. Maybe she'll write to me now."

Madeline frowned. She studied the inlaid pearl of the table before her and her quick wits began to dance. "No, Con," she said slowly, "I don't believe she will. I don't think you'll ever see Donna again."

"What makes you say that? She's coming back to the show, isn't she?"

"No, she isn't."

"You mean the injury was worse than we thought?"

"No. She—oh, Con, darling, I hate to tell you! I know how you love Donna and I know how terrible this will hurt you. But you knew you never had a chance with her, didn't you? You knew that, while she was fond of you and always liked you, she wouldn't ever think of marrying you. You'll just have to square your shoulders and—"

"Cut out the sob stuff!" he broke in harshly. "Spill it!"

"She's going to be married."

"To the cousin?"

"He's my cousin, not hers. Yes, they're going to be married."

Con sat motionless, his face slowly growing whiter and whiter. His hands gripped the arms of his chair and the knuckles stood out in ridges. Then he laughed. "Well, that's that! What do we eat—chop suey or chow mein?"

"You mean you don't care?" Madeline cried hysterically. "You really don't care?"

"No woman is going to ruin my appetite," Con answered.

But Madeline, trembling over the success of her falsehood, noticed that his food left the table untouched. She suggested that they return to the circus lot before it was really necessary to do so. She had scored a triumph, but if Con should write to Donna to confirm her statement, the situation might not be so rosy. A long walk in a shadowy lane was more conducive to sentiment than a warm Chinese restaurant.

Renfroe was waiting for them at the dressing tent. "Come over here, Madeline," he said. "I want to talk to you."

* * *

The ever-present fear of receiving a two week's notice gripped the girl. She looked appealingly toward Con. "What's the matter, Chief?" the animal trainer asked. "You don't object to Madeline stepping out with me once in a while, do you?"

"Not exactly. But she's the only girl alone in this show and she has to watch where she steps. I've been thinking it over. It's a responsibility — they're talking. I think you're a swell kid, Madeline, but hell! I broke the rule never to have single girls in the show when I kept you on. It's too much trouble and I believe—"

"Who's been talking?" Con demanded.

"Er—everyone. You and Madeline are pretty thick. Then—"

"Why shouldn't we be?"

"Hush, Con!" Madeline interrupted with a wan smile. "If I'm not wanted, I'll go. I thought when I did everything I could after poor Donna was hurt it would be appreciated, but I guess it wasn't."

"Sure I appreciate what you've done, Madeline, but—oh, if you were older and maybe a little more straight-laced—"

"Listen here," Con caught the other man's coat sleeve. "You mean they're talking about Madeline and me? Well, go tell the lousy gossips we're going to be married."

"Con!"

"And if that doesn't suit them you can get a new animal act—and pronto!"

"Keep your shirt on, Con," Renfroe cajoled. "If you and Madeline are engaged and all this is on the level we'll be tickled pink. No one thought either of you were serious, that's all. And you know a girl—"

"Yes, I know. It makes me sick the way nosy-bodies meddle with every one else's business. I thought you had more sense. I've a notion to leave your show anyway and—"

"Now, now, Con!" the manager soothed. "I've got to tell Mom the news. Gosh, she'll be surprised."

As Renfroe disappeared into the dressing tent Madeline whirled upon Con.

"Did you mean that? Or did you just say it to save my job?"

"Why shouldn't I mean it? If you'll have me, knowing I don't love you and probably never will, we might make a go of marriage. I swear I'll always be on the level with you."

"Oh, Con," Madeline cried, nestling against the arm that hung limply at his side. "I love you so much I'd marry you even if you wanted to put me right into your cage of cats."

He looked at her, half-startled. "That's an idea! That IS an idea. I'll make you part of my act!"

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

On Our Way by Franklin D. Roosevelt, published by the John Day Co.

President Roosevelt's new book "On Our Way" differs from his former book as history differs from theory and fact. In "Looking Forward" he expounded his theories and principles. It is interesting to compare these two books for it is a comparison of aims and checking up of aims and objectives with accomplishments. It will be recalled that he said in "Looking Forward": Good government should maintain the balance where every individual may find safety if he wishes it, where every individual may attain such power as his ability permits, consistent with his assuming the accompanying responsibility. We must build toward the time when a major depression can not occur again; and if this means sacrificing the easy profits of inflationist booms, then let them go, and good riddance. Furthermore he says: The issue of government has always been whether individual men and women will have to serve some system of government or economics or whether a system of government and economics exist to serve individual men and women.

When President Roosevelt assumed office he was faced with a situation which forced him to put in the background except as it related to the pressure of necessities at hand, the plans for preventives for the future economic chaos such as we have been passing through. He tells in his book "On Our Way" the steps he took and that congress took to meet the necessities of the moment.

The book sets forth without argument and without extended explanation the many significant events of last year.

"There has been a change in our policy and President Roosevelt says apart from phrases and slogans, the important thing to remember is that the change in our policy is based upon a change in the attitude and the thinking of the American people—in other words that it is based upon the growing into maturity of our democracy; that it proceeds in accordance with the underlying principles that guided the framers of our Constitution; that it is taking form with the general approval of a very large majority of the American people; and finally that it is made with the constant assurance to the people that if at any time they wish to revert to the old methods that we have discarded, they are wholly free to bring about such a reversion by the simple means of the ballot box."

A winning quality in the president, which disarms his critics, is his readiness to listen to criticism and his acknowledged willingness to make changes when a certain line of policy is revealed as inexpedient.

The book holds a certain practical interest. It is a review of events and serves to orient us for the future.

If we don't want to be "dated" we must begin to talk about the "power age" and stop talking about the "machine age," except as a stage in our economic development through which we have passed. And in the "power age" we learn that there isn't any place at all for labor. Power does all the work, except the directing, the planning, the inventing. And that leaves us face to face with the necessity of some economic adjustment which will serve to distribute goods.

Labor never again will be absorbed back into industry, if all Mr. Chase's perdictions are true. What are we going to do about it? Those who have been avoiding thinking about a way of changing from a society fitted to the economy of scarcity to one fitted to the economy of abundance won't be able to avoid it forever.

There will be no "backing forward into the future" as someone has said of the program of the Republican party which was recently rallied by a call to look on their glorious past.

The politicians of the future, says Mr. Chase, will emphasize a plan for security. That is the crying need. His distinction between vendability and serviceability is one of the excellent points in the book which clarify our thinking.

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

MOJAVE DESERT

The wearing winds of ages have oppressed
This land where stalwart mesas plant their feet;
With sun on sand the days, adroop with heat,
Renew their blurred perpetual palimpsest.
Here time turned stone; but gaunt rocks have confessed
Their piecemeal destinies constrain retreat;
In face of doom the obstinate mesquite

On this vast war-ground instinct urges awe
And honor for the green fantastic things
Obeying bravely life's pervasive law.
Each year the rapier-clustered yucca flings
Anew the bells a thousand centuries saw.
Beauty has worsted death—how many springs!

—Norman A Brittin

YUCCA HILLS

There is no rest for me until I go
There lie the happy paths that children know,
Where sunlight earthward spills.
The wind wears silver slippers on these paths,
And races with the flowers in the sun;

The gowns of gossamer for earth are spun.
Then death shall make for me on yucca hills
A mound white-petaled as the stillness there,
Where I can rest and longing never fills
The solitude, nor flowers know a care.
On yucca hills the white bells softly chime,
Sleep on, oh grief, on yucca hills through time.

WILL ROGERS TO STAR ON STATE THEATER'S BILL

Frolicking through financial disasters across a continent, Will Rogers leads the Skitch family from penury to Hollywood success in "Mr. Skitch," latest Fox release showing at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

With the hope of regaining the family fortune, lost in a bank failure, Rogers starts his brood of six on a cross-country auto trip that becomes a grand tour of laughter before the film capital and solvency are reached. He finally manages to find a job in a gambling casino, where he puts the first dollar he earns on the wheel, and wins $3000.

ZaSu Pitts, cast as Roger's wife, is as haphazard and dithering as usual in her film roles, and loses the gambling gains which were to have given the family a new start. Penniless again, the Skitches set out for Hollywood, planning to capitalize on the talents of an auto-camp acquaintance with a flair for impersonating popular motion picture stars. How the gum-chewing Rogers finally extricates himself from more pecuniary troubles in the screen center brings the film to an hilarious conclusion.

JOE BROWN FILM ENDS AT BROADWAY

What happens when Joe E. Brown, the screen's most hilarious comedian, sells his body to a mad doctor to pay his debts under a contract which gives him 30 days of life before delivering himself as a corpse climaxes "A Very Honorable Guy," which plays for the last times today at the Broadway theater.

In what is believed to be the funniest picture in his career, Brown has the role of a dumb gambler, although he is "A Very Honorable Guy." Alice White, petite blonde, has the leading feminine role as a gold-digging chorus girl. Alan Dinehart, Robert Barrat, Irene Franklin and Harold Huber are included in the talented cast.

Rounding out the program, the selected short subjects include an MGM satire in technicolor, "Jailbirds in Paradise," Chic Sale in "Oil's Well," a newsreel cameraman series, "Navies of the World," and Register World News Events.

MUSIC-DRAMA TO PLAY WEST COAST MONDAY

Earl Carroll's hand-picked beauties will pirouttee about on the screen of the West Coast theater for a week starting Monday when "Murder at the Vanities" shows here for the first time, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Buck's newest exploits carry him into hair-raising adventures in the jungles of Java, Sumatra, Ceylon, India and Malaya. He has thrilling experiences in capturing alive tapirs, rhinoceros, monkeys, man-eating tigers, death-dealing pythons and cobras, flying foxes, hornbills, cassowaries, clouded leopards and an orang-utan.

One of the most thrilling scenes in "Wild Cargo" is when Buck captures an enraged male Indian rhinoceros. Employing one of his ingenious traps, Buck marshalled 60 natives holding an intricate and immense net. As the rhinoceros approached, the natives surrounded it with the net. The animal charged and escaped and Buck had to lasso the rhino and tie it to a tree with cables. It is the only male rhinoceros in captivity.

There is but one fight, animal against animal, but Buck is pitted against many deadly jungle beasts in the picture. Twice he stared death in the face and narrowly escaped.

Selected short subjects include a color cartoon, "Brave Tin Soldiers," a sports reel, "Winter Thrills," and World News Events.

The story is a drama of epic struggle and inspiring love. It portrays with realism the hardships of four youngsters just out of college, two girls and two boys, in trying to realize their ambitions in a big city.

"VIVA VILLA!" OPENS SUNDAY AT BROADWAY

"Viva Villa!" which opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a four-day engagement with Wallace Beery starred, takes its place among the truly great pictures of all time ,it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

A fictional version of the life and loves of Pancho Villa, the great Mexican war lord who was the world's most outstanding figure in the decade preceding the World war, it combines spectacle and human elements in a manner reminiscent of the great classic, "The Birth of a Nation.' It is in the same vein.

It represents Pancho Villa in love, his feminine foils being Fay Wray and Katherine DeMille. Highlights of this romantic aspect of the picture include Beery's attempt to win the love of Miss Wray by force—a scene in which she shoots him and in which he beats her with a cattle whip. It is one of the most powerful scenes ever filmed.

Some of the most spectacular battle scenes ever taken are in "Viva Villa!" One hundred thousand Mexican natives were used in the picture, as many as 6000 appearing on the scene at one time in the battle sequences.

Beery's friendship with Henry B. Walthall, who plays the gentle President Madero, and with Stuart Erwin devil-may-care newspaper correspondent, provide material for intense drama. The cast includes such noted players as Leo Carrillo, Donald Cook, George E. Stone, Joseph Schildkrauit, Phillip Cooper, Frank Puglia and others.

Short subjects include a Pete Smith novelty, "Nipups," a Terrytoon cartoon, "The King's Daughter,' and World News.

"LAUGHING BOY" TO PLAY WEST COAST

Lupe Velez stars with Novarro in the picture, which is a stirring Indian drama which concerns the life of a young Navajo Indian who comes from the mountain regions of his reservation home to learn of life and love.

BOOK REVIEWS

On Our Way by Franklin D. Roosevelt, published by the John Day Co.

President Roosevelt's new book "On Our Way" differs from his former book as history differs from theory and fact. In "Looking Forward" he expounded his theories and principles. It is interesting to compare these two books for it is a comparison of aims and checking up of aims and objectives with accomplishments. It will be recalled that he said in "Looking Forward": Good government should maintain the balance where every individual may find safety if he wishes it, where every individual may attain such power as his ability permits, consistent with his assuming the accompanying responsibility. We must build toward the time when a major depression can not occur again: and if this means sacrificing the easy profits of inflationist booms, then let them go, and good riddance. Furthermore he says: The issue of government has always been whether individual men and women will have to serve some system of government or economics or whether a system of government and economics exist to serve individual men and women.

When President Roosevelt assumed office he was faced with a situation which forced him to put in the background except as it related to the pressure of necessities at hand, the plans for preventives for the future economic chaos such as we have been passing through. He tells in his book "On Our Way" the steps he took and that congress took to meet the necessities of the moment.

The book sets forth without argument and without extended explanation the many significant events of last year.

"There has been a change in our policy and President Roosevelt says apart from phrases and slogans, the important thing to remember is that the change in our policy is based upon a change in the attitude and the thinking of the American people—in other words that it is based upon the growing into maturity of our democracy; that it proceeds in accordance with the underlying principles that guided the framers of our Constitution; that it is taking form with the general approval of a very large majority of the American people; and finally that it is made with the constant assurance to the people that if at any time they wish to revert to the old methods that we have discarded, they are wholly free to bring about such a reversion by the simple means of the ballot box."

A winning quality in the president, which disarms his critics, is his readiness to listen to criticism and his acknowledged willingness to make changes when a certain line of policy is revealed as inexpedient.

The book holds a certain practical interest. It is a review of events and serves to orient us for the future.

If we don't want to be "dated" we must begin to talk about the "power age" and stop talking about the "machine age," except as a stage in our economic development through which we have passed. And in the "power age" we learn that there isn't any place at all for labor. Power does all the work, except the directing, the planning, the inventing. And that leaves us face to face with the necessity of some economic adjustment which will serve to distribute goods.

Labor never again will be absorbed back into industry, if all Mr. Chase's perdictions are true. What are we going to do about it? Those who have been avoiding thinking about a way of changing from a society fitted to the economy of scarcity to one fitted to the economy of abundance won't be able to avoid it forever.

There will be no "backing forward into the future" as someone has said of the program of the Republican party which was recently rallied by a call to look on their glorious past.

The politicians of the future, says Mr. Chase, will emphasize a plan for security. That is the crying need. His distinction between vendability and serviceability is one of the excellent points in the book which clarify our thinking.

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

MOJAVE DESERT

The wearing winds of ages have oppressed
This land where stalwart mesas plant their feet;
With sun on sand the days, adroop with heat,
Renew their blurred perpetual palimpsest.
Here time turned stone; but gaunt rocks have confessed
Their piecemeal destinies constrain retreat;
In face of doom the obstinate mesquite

On this vast war-ground instinct urges awe
And honor for the green fantastic things
Obeying bravely life's pervasive law.
Each year the rapier-clustered yucca flings

—Norman A Brittin

YUCCA HILLS

There is no rest for me until I go
White clad with death to climb the yucca hills,
There lie the happy paths that children know,
The wind wears silver slippers on these paths,
And races with the flowers in the sun;

Then death shall make for me on yucca hills
A mound white-petaled as the stillness there,
Where I can rest and longing never fills
The solitude, nor flowers know a care.
On yucca hills the white bells softly chime,

WILL ROGERS TO STAR ON STATE THEATER'S BILL

Frolicking through financial disasters across a continent, Will Rogers leads the Skitch family from penury to Hollywood success in "Mr. Skitch," latest Fox release showing at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

With the hope of regaining the family fortune, lost in a bank failure, Rogers starts his brood of six on a cross-country auto trip that becomes a grand tour of laughter before the film capital and solvency are reached. He finally manages to find a job in a gambling casino, where he puts the first dollar he earns on the wheel, and wins $3000.

ZaSu Pitts, cast as Roger's wife, is as haphazard and dithering as usual in her film roles, and loses the gambling gains which were to have given the family a new start. Penniless again, the Skitches set out for Hollywood, planning to capitalize on the talents of an auto-camp acquaintance with a flair for impersonating popular motion picture stars. How the gum-chewing Rogers finally extricates himself from more pecuniary troubles in the screen center brings the film to an hilarious conclusion.

JOE BROWN FILM ENDS AT BROADWAY

What happens when Joe E. Brown, the screen's most hilarious comedian, sells his body to a mad doctor to pay his debts under a contract which gives him 30 days of life before delivering himself as a corpse climaxes "A Very Honorable Guy," which plays for the last times today at the Broadway theater.

In what is believed to be the funniest picture in his career, Brown has the role of a dumb gambler, although he is "A Very Honorable Guy." Alice White, petite blonde, has the leading feminine role as a gold-digging chorus girl. Alan Dinehart, Robert Barrat, Irene Franklin and Harold Huber are included in the talented cast.

Rounding out the program, the selected short subjects include an MGM satire in technicolor, "Jailbirds in Paradise," Chic Sale in "Oil's Well," a newsreel cameraman series, "Navies of the World," and Register World News Events.

'UPPER WORLD' AT BROADWAY ON THURSDAY

The story of a double murder in a millionaire's love nest is the theme of "Upper World," which opens at the Broadway theater Thursday for a three-day engagement, it was announced today by Lester J. Fountain, manager.

Based on the thrilling novel by Ben Hecht, famous author and playwright who points out that philandering love affairs and bloodshed can happen in the highest society as well as in the realms of gangdom.

Warren Williams, portraying a millionaire railway magnate, who becomes involved with a chorus girl when neglected by his socially ambitious wife, heads a large cast of talented players. Stately Mary Astor has the role of his wife, while Ginger Rogers is the burlesque queen for whom he sets up an apartment in which the killings take place.

Thrilling incidents in addition to the murder episode include the rescue of a girl washed out to sea by the tide and the crashing of an airplane in which the millionaire and his inamorata are keeping a tryst.

Barrymore Comedy To Play Here

John Barrymore and Carole Lombard are teamed as star and leading lady in the fast-moving, hilarious comedy "20th Century," booked to appear at the Broadway theater starting Sunday, May 27, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Described as the only comedy of its type in which Barrymore has ever appeared, the laughmaker presents the star in the character of an eccentric theatrical producer, with Miss Lombard as a temperamental and fiery stage star.

Mrs. Roosevelt In News Reel Here

Included are events showing Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt opening the Merchant Marine library drive with a gift from the president; Insull, former utility magnate, returning as a prisoner to Chicago; how daring workmen risk their lives under Niagara Falls to repair bridges tourists use to the Cave of the Winds; and Colonel Hickman turning over the first load of air mail after service was returned to private ownership.

Murder Mystery Will Open Soon

A thrilling mystery story with many new twists and a picture in which the murder element is softened by a running fire of comedy is "Private Scandal,' which opens at the West Coast theater on June 1 for a three-day engagement, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

ZaSu Pitts and Ned Sparks bring repeated laughter in their riotous scenes. The romance is carried by Mary Brian and Phillips Holmes, two capable young players. Lew Cody is impressive as a business man who gets into a financial jam.

"VIVA VILLA!" HERE SUNDAY

MUSIC AND MURDER

MUSIC-DRAMA TO PLAY WEST COAST MONDAY

Earl Carroll's hand-picked beauties will pirouttee about on the screen of the West Coast theater for a week starting Monday when "Murder at the Vanities" shows here for the first time, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Victor McLaglen plays a novel type of 'cop" in "Murder in the Vanities," while Jack Oakie supplies the comedy element in his inimitable style. Dorothy Stickney plays the part of the maid. Carl Brisson, with his delightful singing voice is another attraction. Kitty Carlisle is the leading lady of the show, while Gertrude Michael is the villainess. Others in the cast include Jessie Ralph, Charles Middleton, Gail Patrick, Donald Meek, Barbara Fritchie, Toby Wing and Lona Andre.

The screen play is by Carey Wilson and Rufus King and the direction by Mitchell Leisen. The music is by Arthur Johnstone and the lyrics by Sam Coslow.

"WILD CARGO" ENDS AT WEST COAST SUNDAY

Lovers of animal-adventure pictures will have the last opportunity to see Frank Buck, dean of wild animal collectors in "Wild Cargo," the RKO camera record of Buck's recent adventures in Asiatic jungles stalking and capturing wild beasts, when the picture plays for the last times tomorrow night at the West Coast theater.

Buck's newest exploits carry him into hair-raising adventures in the jungles of Java, Sumatra, Ceylon, India and Malaya. He has thrilling experiences in capturing alive tapirs, rhinoceros, monkeys, man-eating tigers, death-dealing pythons and cobras, flying foxes, hornbills, cassowaries, clouded leopards and an orang-utan.

One of the most thrilling scenes in "Wild Cargo" is when Buck captures an enraged male Indian rhinoceros. Employing one of his ingenious traps, Buck marshalled 60 natives holding an intricate and immense net. As the rhinoceros approached, the natives surrounded it with the net. The animal charged and escaped and Buck had to lasso the rhino and tie it to a tree with cables. It is the only male rhinoceros in captivity.

There is but one fight, animal against animal, but Buck is pitted against many deadly jungle beasts in the picture. Twice he stared death in the face and narrowly escaped.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner

½ small cantaloupe
½ spring chicken
3 tbsps. new green peas
Salad: lime jelly with pears and lettuce
1 small cup custard
Clear tea or black coffee
Calory total 550

Cantaloupes, small ones, are so reasonable we can afford to use them for the first course.

When you make grapefruit and jellied lime salad, make enough to carry over for today's salad; a halved canned pear arranged on crisp yellow lettuce heart leaves, then a big spoonful of lime jelly dropped over the year. One tablespoonful of mineral oil salad dressing is used with the diet salad.

Don't pass up those squdb broilers which sell for as little as five for a dollar. They don't fry very successfully, but they "smother" to perfection, after this fashion:

Split broilers down back and down breast bone. Wash well, dry and dredge with seasoned flour. Put some butter in a baking pan, lay the broiler halves on the butter, then strew over them a handful of chopped parsley, some chopped chives or green onion tops, a dash of paprika and garlic salt. Put ½ cup of hot water around them and set them in a slow even to cook until tender (11-4 hours) then speed up the oven and brown them quickly. Sum'shus!

* * *

An efficient reducing diet is offered free of charge to those who wish it. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when writing for the SAFE AND SANE REDUCING DIET.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Stuffed Cabbage Squares

1 loose head cabbage
2 cups cooked rice
1 cup ground walnuts
1 egg beaten
3 tbsps. melted butter
3 tbsps. sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
Salt and pepper

To the cooked hot rice add walnuts, butter, sugar, cinnamon, and just a dash of salt and pepper. Mix well, and bind the mixture with the beaten egg.

Lay the wilted leaves flat, put a spoonful of rice filling on each leaf, fold over to make a square package, tie in shape or pin with tooth picks. Place the squares in a pan with bits of butter, any left over filling and a tiny bit of water. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven about 45 minutes.

* * *

Serve this as a main dish. Each square has an approximate calory value of 50, chiefly energy makers, due to the nature of the filling.

SOMETHING NEW IN A SLENDERIZING SURPLICE

PATTERN 1840

By MAUDE ADAMS

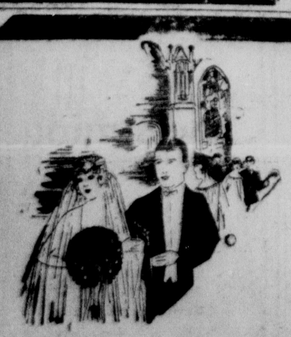

You can't do better than a surplice for slenderness—but you can do something new and better with the surplice, and this frock proves it! To begin with, it is augmented by a graceful cape which is a chic-saver for the woman who is a little too ample above the waistline. Then remark the way the gown ties around the figure—there is a sash in the back, which you see in the small view. It begins at the point where the cape is attached to the gown on each side of the front, and the end on the under side slips through a slash in the right of the garment.

Pattern 1840 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 4 1/8 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-6 yard 6 inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Club Members Spend Pleasant Evening

Entertaining bridge club members in her home, 1688 East Fourth street Thursday night, Miss Helen Demetriou used a profusion of carnations, pink roses and other flowers in decorating for the event.

Prizes in the card contest were awarded Mrs. Clyde Higgins and Miss Dorothy Dunbar, scoring first and second high. A salad course was served at the evening's close.

Those present with the hostess, Miss Demetriou, were Miss Miriam Samuelson, Mrs. Clyde Higgins, Miss Dorothy Dunbar, Miss Roselind Schilling and two special guests, Miss Joy McPhee and Miss Betty Vorce.

Activities of the Emma Sansome chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will be guided by Mrs. Charley Price, who was elected president of the organization at a meeting held Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Victor Montgomery, 1418 North Main street.

Mrs. Price will be assisted in her work by the following officers who were chosen at the Thursday session: Miss Jessie Luchsinger, first vice-president; Miss Percie Head, second vice-president; Mrs. T. J. Haughton, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Taylor, treasurer; Mrs. Lillian Pritchett, historian; Miss Louise Montgomery, registrar; Mrs. Alice Turner, chaplain and Mrs. L. A. Mayfield, custodian of property.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Pritchett, out-going president, reported on the business activities of the state convention held in San Diego last week. She was one of the three Santa Ana delegates to attend the conclave, the other two being Mrs. Clara Duggan and Miss Gertrude Montgomery.

Of interest to their friends in this city is the fact that Mrs. Pritchett was chosen second vice-president of the California Division of the U. D. C., while Miss Montgomery had the honor of planning and presenting the Memorial hour program given at the convention in honor of the 36 members and veterans who died last year. In her report made at Thursday's meeting, Miss Montgomery told of this Memorial program and also of the social activities of the convention.

On the afternoon program as entertainers were Mrs. Clarence Nissen of Tustin, who gave one of her popular negro-dialect readings, and William Beeman, who presented two piano solos.

Bringing the day to a close, refreshments were served, with Mrs. Victor Montgomery and Mrs. Pritchard pouring tea and coffee. Miss Lalla Jane Cherry, Mrs. Nissen and Mrs. Tarver Montgomery assisted with the serving, while Misses Louise and Gertrude Montgomery and Mrs. Richard Coons of Anaheim were cohostesses with Mrs. Montgomery.

Parent-Teachers

"Girl Scouts, Home Training and Scout Work" was the topic of an instructive talk by Mrs. Robert R. Russick, Girl Scout adviser. Harrison White, Boy Scout executive, discussed "Boy Scout Character Building and Discipline."

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner

½ small cantaloupe
½ spring chicken
3 tbsps. new green peas
Salad: lime pelly with pears and lettuce
1 small cup custard
Clear tea or black coffee
Calory total 550

Cantaloupes, small ones, are so reasonable we can afford to use them for the first course.

When you make grapefruit and jellied lime salad, make enough to carry over for today's salad; a halved canned pear arranged on crisp yellow lettuce heart leaves, then a big spoonful of lime jelly dropped over the year. One tablespoonful of mineral oil salad dressing is used with the diet salad.

Don't pass up those squdb broilers which sell for as little as five for a dollar. They don't fry very successfully, but they "smother" to perfection, after this fashion:

Split broilers down back and down breast bone. Wash well, dry and dredge with seasoned flour. Put some butter in a baking pan, lay the broiler halves on the butter, then strew over them a handful of chopped parsley, some chopped chives or green onion tops, a dash of paprika and garlic salt. Put ½ cup of hot water around them and set them in a slow even to cook until tender (11-4 hours) then speed up the oven and brown them quickly. Sum'shus!

* * *

This menu is suggested for the family Sunday dinner. Add potatoes, rolls, and a different dessert if custard is not to their liking.

An efficient reducing diet is offered free of charge to those who wish it. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when writing for the SAFE AND SANE REDUCING DIET.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Stuffed Cabbage Squares

1 loose head cabbage
2 cups cooked rice
1 cup ground walnuts
1 egg beaten
3 tbsps. melted butter
3 tbsps. sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
Salt and pepper

Cut uut stem end of cabbage and separate the large leaves. Plunge them into boiling water just long enough to wilt them, then drain.

To the cooked hot rice add walnuts, butter, sugar, cinnamon, and just a dash of salt and pepper. Mix well, and bind the mixture with the beaten egg.

Lay the wilted leaves flat, put a spoonful of rice filling on each leaf, fold over to make a square package, tie in shape or pin with tooth picks. Place the squares in a pan with bits of butter, any left over filling and a tiny bit of water. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven about 45 minutes.

* * *

Serve this as a main dish. Each square has an approximate calory value of 50, chiefly energy makers, due to the nature of the filling.

SOMETHING NEW IN A SLENDERIZING SURPLICE

By MAUDE ADAMS

You can't do better than a surplice for slenderness—but you can do something new and better with the surplice, and this frock proves it! To begin with, it is augmented by a graceful cape which is a chic-saver for the woman who is a little too ample above the waistline. Then remark the way the gown ties around the figure—there is a sash in the back, which you see in the small view. It begins at the point where the cape is attached to the gown on each side of the front, and the end on the under side slips through a slash in the right of the garment.

Pattern 1840 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 4 1/8 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-6 yard 6 inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE LATEST EDITION OF ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK features all the best seasonal styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Future of the Kingdom

Text: Matt. 24:1 to 25:30
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 20.

* * *

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of Advance

Among the effective illustrations of the kingdom of heaven none was more vivid or striking than that of the 10 virgins with the 10 lamps, going forth to meet the bridegroom.

The lamps were of no use without oil and it might have been supposed that oil would be the first consideration, but let any reader who has ever been stalled on the highway with an auto out of gas cast a stone at the foolish virgins.

The virgins were fair types of ordinary people and it was not remarkable that one-half of them were so slack as to go forth with their lamps without oil. So it was that, as the bridegroom was late, they had fallen asleep.

When they were aroused to meet him, the five wise virgins lighted their lamps and went forth, but the foolish virgins were put to shame, for their lamps and gone out and there was no time for them to go and buy more oil, though they went to seek it. The bridegroom came while they were gone, and the door was shut.

* * *

Of course, the story is constructed to point the moral that Jesus intended: namely, that people are just as foolish concerning the greater things of life as they are about the lesser things, and the foolish are shut out just as relentlessly from the high sources of grace and truth, if they neglect their opportunity, as were these foolish virgins.

The teaching of this lesson is worth considering in a rather slack age. We do not today make quite so much of either heaven or hell as did a former generation. We go on for the most part without that terrible sense of destiny that has affected people so deeply in the past, but the solemn truths of Scripture are just as solemn as they ever were.

We see men and women make rack and ruin of life, not always through sinfulness, but often through foolishness. It is not downright evil that alone defeats a man's life, but his lesser sins and shortcomings as well.

* * *

"I have played the fool," was King Saul's candid confession when he had made a mess of his life. That was a life of tragedy, stark and terrible, ending with suicide on a battlefield of defeat the career of a man, splendid in physique and endowment, who had been called to high responsibility under the most favorable circumstance.

Tragedy begun in folly—that was Saul's history. And tragedy may enter our lives through folly.

Be watchful, be well prepared and provided; leave nothing to chance, but bring all of life under the dominance of its highest opportunity and destiny—that is the lesson of the Parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Future of the Kingdom

Text: Matt. 24:1 to 25:30
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 20.

* * *

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Among the effective illustrations of the kingdom of heaven none was more vivid or striking than that of the 10 virgins with the 10 lamps, going forth to meet the bridegroom.

The lamps were of no use without oil and it might have been supposed that oil would be the first consideration, but let any reader who has ever been stalled on the highway with an auto out of gas cast a stone at the foolish virgins.

The virgins were fair types of ordinary people and it was not remarkable that one-half of them were so slack as to go forth with their lamps without oil. So it was that, as the bridegroom was late, they had fallen asleep.

When they were aroused to meet him, the five wise virgins lighted their lamps and went forth, but the foolish virgins were put to shame, for their lamps and gone out and there was no time for them to go and buy more oil, though they went to seek it. The bridegroom came while they were gone, and the door was shut.

* * *

Of course, the story is constructed to point the moral that Jesus intended: namely, that people are just as foolish concerning the greater things of life as they are about the lesser things, and the foolish are shut out just as relentlessly from the high sources of grace and truth, if they neglect their opportunity, as were these foolish virgins.

The teaching of this lesson is worth considering in a rather slack age. We do not today make quite so much of either heaven or hell as did a former generation. We go on for the most part without that terrible sense of destiny that has affected people so deeply in the past, but the solemn truths of Scripture are just as solemn as they ever were.

We see men and women make rack and ruin of life, not always through sinfulness, but often through foolishness. It is not downright evil that alone defeats a man's life, but his lesser sins and shortcomings as well.

* * *

"I have played the fool," was King Saul's candid confession when he had made a mess of his life. That was a life of tragedy, stark and terrible, ending with suicide on a battlefield of defeat the career of a man, splendid in physique and endowment, who had been called to high responsibility under the most favorable circumstance.

Tragedy begun in folly—that was Saul's history. And tragedy may enter our lives through folly.

Be watchful, be well prepared and provided; leave nothing to chance, but bring all of life under the dominance of its highest opportunity and destiny—that is the lesson of the Parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

Wee Dotty had a lot of fun. Said she, "I shortly will be done with sprinkling. My, what pretty flowers. See how nice they grow.

"They must be thirsty as can be, because, as far as I can see, they drink the water just as fast as I can make it flow."

Then up to her brave Scouty ran. "Hey, let me swing that wat'ring can," he shouted. "I am good and strong, and I won't get tired out.

"I think that Mistress Mary's been real fine to us since we walked into her fine little garden, so to work I want to go."

* * *

The Tinies watched him for a while. Then Mistress Mary, with a smile, said, "How would you tots like to see a fine dance of the flowers?

"I give them lots to drink, you see, so they are very kind to me. Unless I stop them, when they're dancing, they will dance for hours."

* * *

The face on each bloom shortly spread into a grin. Then Goldy said, "Oh, look, they're rising from the earth, and each one has small feet.

"I know that this will be just grand. They're ready, now, all hand-in-hand. Come, join me on this rock, tots, which is like a grandstand seat."

RUSSIA TO EMPLOY U. S. MOVIE STARS

NEW YORK, May 19.—(UP)—Russia wants to boost its movie exports to America by employing American actors in non-propaganda stories, V. A. Usievich, foreign trade chief of Soviet Motion Pictures, said today on arrival for a month's "scouting" tour.

He said he would not hire actors directly but would seek to interest producers in a plan to supply American talent for English-speaking versions of Russian pictures. Acting troupes would be sent to Russia to reenact the scenes acted by Russian artists.

The Soviet plans production of 100 major films this year, he said. The government is now trying to overcome a deficiency of sound equipment, he added—only 2,000 of the 32,000 Soviet theaters being equipped for talking pictures.

RETAIL GASOLINE PRICES WILL SOAR

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 19.—(UP)—Retail gasoline prices throughout California are scheduled to go up two or three cents within the next week, George D. Nordenholt, state director of natural resources, said today.

Nordenholt, who just returned here from Los Angeles, where he conferred with oil industry leaders, said all major oil companies have entered an agreement and that all independents with but one exception have signed the pact. That company will sign within a few days, it was expected.

Weekly Citrus Review

ORANGES

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 19.—(Office of the Fruit World)—The market on California Navel oranges was a little easier this week as considerable fruit showed shrinkage—some decay prevalent. Navels are practically through for the season however and Valencias will soon hold full sway in the markets.

The market on Valencias continues in good shape. Many of the smaller markets are now taking Valencias and with Florida out of the picture in about another week; shipments being cut down (the prorate for next week set at 1100 cars Valencias) a stronger market situation is anticipated.

Valencias are running small, but are giving good satisfaction. Weather throughout the country is turning hot which should speed up the demand for juice and shippers are anticipatiang a stronger market all along the line.

F. o. b. California quotations on Fancy Valencias are on a basis of $2.00 to $2.25 on 126s and larger; $2.25 to $2.40 on 150s, $2.50 to $2.65 on 176s to 388s; $2.15 to $2.25 on 344s and $2.00 to $2.15 on 392s.

LEMONS

Cool, rainy weather throughout the east and middle western country slowed down the demand for lemons the early part of the week, but rising temperatures the latter part of the week caused considerable activity and there is every prospect for a higher market situation next week.

F. o. b. California quotations on Extra Choice lemons, all sizes, range from $4.75 to $5.25 per box.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days in all United States ports approximately 2 cars of foreign lemons. For the corresponding period in 1933 there were 40 cars; 1932, 14 cars; 1930, 409 cars and 1929, 135 cars.

Weekly Citrus Review

ORANGES

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 19.—(Office of the Fruit World)—The market on California Navel oranges was a little easier this week as considerable fruit showed shrinkage—some decay prevalent. Navels are practically through for the season however and Valencias will soon hold full sway in the markets.

The market on Valencias continues in good shape. Many of the smaller markets are now taking Valencias and with Florida out of the picture in about another week; shipments being cut down (the prorate for next week set at 1100 cars Valencias) a stronger market situation is anticipated.

Valencias are running small, but are giving good satisfaction. Weather throughout the country is turning hot which should speed up the demand for juice and shippers are anticipatiang a stronger market all along the line.

F. o. b. California quotations on Fancy Valencias are on a basis of $2.00 to $2.25 on 126s and larger; $2.25 to $2.40 on 150s, $2.50 to $2.65 on 176s to 388s; $2.15 to $2.25 on 344s and $2.00 to $2.15 on 392s.

LEMONS

Cool, rainy weather throughout the east and middle western country slowed down the demand for lemons the early part of the week, but rising temperatures the latter part of the week caused considerable activity and there is every prospect for a higher market situation next week.

F. o. b. California quotations on Extra Choice lemons, all sizes, range from $4.75 to $5.25 per box.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days in all United States ports approximately 2 cars of foreign lemons. For the corresponding period in 1933 there were 40 cars; 1932, 14 cars; 1930, 402 cars and 1929, 135 cars.

WE DO OUR PART

THE CHURCH AND WAR

From 312 A. D., when, according to legend, the Emperor Constantine accepted Christianity because of the supposed support derived from the God of the Christian in the battle with rebellious subjects, the official Christian church has invariably supported the state in war. The intimate connection between the church and the war makers lasted until the middle of the 17th century when George Fox, an itinerant preacher, began to preach the pernicious doctrine of non-resistance which, with but few exceptions, was despised by organized religion.

By the middle of the 19th century a large number of the more advanced thinkers of the church and society in general began to doubt the justice and religiousness of the close association of the church and war. Written on the eve of the Civil War, James B. Lowell said:

Ez fer war, I call it murder—
There you have it plain and flat.
Than my Testament fer that.

The general revolt of the church against war which followed the Spanish-American episode at the end of the 19th century led those sincerely interested in peace to believe that at last the church had honestly begun to teach the principles of Christ, in this one direction at least. This belief was rudely upset during the course of the World War when the church not only supported the war, but actually became more vehement in its denunciation of the enemy and pacifists than did the government.

Of the hundreds of church leaders who had advocated peace and fought against war (in times of peace), only about 20 remained true to the teachings of their Christ. The others, forgetting their Christianity in their desire to curry popular favor, not only did not work for peace but actively entered into the task of enticing the young men in their congregations into the army, teaching them the "moral obligations" of mass murders to society. "Beyond all doubt," Dr. Lansing declared, "our pure motives and purposes have received upon them the divine sanction God could not express Himself in antagonism to what we are doing:

In the true spirit of brotherly love, as practiced by the church, the clergy declared that "there is a human beast at our doors—a human beast who knows no pity and who has forgotten all the rules of honor," that "untamed barbarians and maritime murderers," were loose in the world, and that "Made in Germany" is synonymous with "Made in Hell." Dr. Hillis recommended the sterilization of the male population of Germany and the segregation of the women so that the German race might be completely exterminated.

Such an attitude was not the unique position of the American church. The church of all countries, forgetting their Christ, yet speaking directly, as they claimed, for God, actively encouraged and supported the governments in their mass attempts at murder.

The record of the church and its ministers, those men who claim divine inspiration, who attempt to interpret the divine will to the unenlightened laymen, has been anything but an honorable one. The hypocrisy, the cowardice, the selfishness of the church, has alienated that large group of serious young people who are trying conscientiously to follow the teachings of Christ. The revolt against the church, so prevalent in modern society, is a revolt against hypocrisy, against fraud, against a religion that is not of Christ but of Mammon.

It is only through an honest and sincere reversion to Christianity that the church can ever hope again to interest the youth of the world in organized religion. It is only when the church, in times of stress and through actual sacrifice, can prove that it is sincere and Christian that it will ever attract the honest and enlightened support of an enlightened humanity.

Those who believe in Christianity can thank God that a substantial portion of the clergy, at least in America, is beginning to realize the true merit of the teachings of the man they profess to follow. To a recent questionnaire sent to 100,000 clergymen in the United States there a total of 20,647 who replied. And of these 13,997 said they believed "that the churches of America should now go on record as refusing to sanction or support any further war."

For the first time since 312 A. D., when the church became the handmaiden of the army, a vigorous, dissenting element is demanding that the church itself should live up to the teachings of its founder. Such a church would again receive the approbation of man.

EDUCATION IS LIFE

No better example of the practical training received in the modern university can be cited than today's edition of the Santa Ana Register, which has been edited completely by a crew of college students from the School of Journalism of the University of Southern California.

"Education is life," declares the noted educator John Dewey, and college administrators having accepted this dictum, are endeavoring to make the training they offer just as practical and true to outside life as possible. Lectures, textbook material, exercises and discussions in the classroom are supplemented by actual practice in carrying out the theories.

Under a plan of the School of Journalism, U. S. C. students are sent out on approximately 15 field trips each year, in which they take charge of the editorial activities of various southern California community newspapers, handling the gathering of material, news writing, copyreading, editorial writing and makeup of the pages. In this way are students given advance information and practice in meeting the complex problems offered by the modern world.

KIDNAPING MUST BE MADE UNPROFITABLE

It is one of the most serious blows against modern American civilization that kidnapers range the country, making off with victims and holding them for ransom. The Gettle and Robles cases, in which no ransoms were paid, are the exception among the recent kidnaping attempts. The crooks have escaped with the ransom in almost every other case.

Why should kidnaping flourish today as it did in the days of the robber barons?

Modern criminals, equipped with high speed motor cars and machine guns, can escape swiftly into other states where local officers are impotent. They can shoot their way out of almost any police trap. They can negotiate with the victim's family, asking them to hold off the police until after the ransom is paid. They have everybody, police and family, helpless while they complete plans to get the money. The threat of torture and death makes all agencies play into their hands.

Obviously many things are needed to combat the gangs. We need federal police that know no state boundaries, police that are equipped better than the criminals. But most of all we need federal criminal legislation.

Crime is far more than a local problem. Crooks are engaged in interstate commerce, and it is foolish for local agencies to try to deal with them effectively. We need federal laws that will prohibit the sale of machine guns to individuals and private companies. Laws that will require the registration of all fire arms. Laws that will create a federal police force. And certainly a drastic, sharp-toothed law to prevent further kidnaping.

The kidnaping law should make it a felony to pay a ransom or to negotiate with a kidnaper. To do so should render one an accessory to the crime. What would be the status of kidnaping under such a law? It would stop, because there would be no profit in it.

The no-ransom, no-negotiation law is not impractical, and it will not result in the victims' being killed or tortured in the hope of getting the families to relent and break the law. Since the measure was passed in England there have been no kidnapings. The potential kidnapers know that the business will not pay.

Kidnaping can be outlawed and the death penalty imposed upon every kidnaping, but there will always be crimes of this kind unless they are made unprofitable. Congress can do no better service to this country than to pass legislation of this sort.

WHY WORRY? HERE'S A SOLUTION

Why worry? Don Francisco, venerable Santa Ana pioneer philosopher, offers this solution to the question that has puzzled the ages:

I wonder why folks worry. There are only two reasons for worry: Either you are successful or you are not successful. If you are successful there is nothing to worry about; if you are not successful there are only two things to worry about. Your health is either good or you're sick; if your health is good there is nothing to worry about; if you are sick there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to get well or you are going to die; if you are going to get well there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to die there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to heaven or you are not going to heaven; and if you are going to heaven there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to the other place you'll be so darn busy shaking hands with old friends you won't have time to worry—so why worry?

Wind Erosion Offers Problem to Middle West

San Bernardino Sun

A large part of the country has been learning about wind erosion. Successive years of drouth in the Middle West have brought about widespread, freakish dust storms. Recently a cloud of dust blanketed part of Minnesota and spread as far east as the Atlantic and as far south at Washington. Considerable damage was done not only to human eyes and throats but to young crops. In some places drouth-powdered top soil was removed by the wind, leaving roots exposed to the air. In other places it was deposited as a fine coating over tender young shoots. Both processes were destructive.

Wind erosion is an old story to soil conservation students and to sections of the country where rainfall is normally slight. Near Dalhart, Texas, for example, it is a problem requiring continual study and preventive effort. Farm leaders there point out that vegetation of some kind is essential to hold the soil. Many farmers, therefore, have found it wise to spare certain weeds and wild vines which they would otherwise try to eradicate. Late fall weeds are allowed to remain until after the high winds of the following spring.

It is estimated that wise cooperation with these weeds has saved 60 per cent of the soil fertility that would have been lost by unchecked wind erosion. Forestation would be another and more lasting aid.

High-Flying Flies

Riverside Enterprise

It has long been maintained that the common house fly is not an altitude artist. Since flies could not, or did not, fly very high above the ground, of what use are screen windows in buildings above five or six stories.

The new Los Angeles county hospital, costing twelve million dollars, was built and equipped on that theory. There were no screens above the sixth floor. Now an additional expenditure of $29,500 is required to screen the remaining 1850 windows of the upper stories. Occupants of the hospital have seen flies going in and out of the sixteenth story. And the story about terra firma flies has been exploded.

There should be some scientific data on the subject. Had the flies flown up outside the building or had they used the elevators. If the latter, much expense might be saved by a concentrated anti-fly campaign on the first floor, swatting all the pesky insects before they boarded the "lift." But now it has been demonstrated that flies do fly and fly high. However, we don't like them at any altitude.

THE COOK AND THE RADIO

We got the cook a radio;
She said that she would pack and go
Unless the strife
Of kitchen life
Was eased by dulcet song.
And now she sits beside the fire,
Which is her one and sole desire,
And listens in
To blare and din
All day long.

She chiefly likes the type of tune
That silver tonsilled crooners croon;
She will not bake,
Or broil a steak,
When one is on the air.
She will not scrub, she will not scour,
But hour after lagging hour
Her time is spent
In calm content
Just right there.

If cooks were not so hard to g
We'd take away that radio set,
And then, maybe,
More often we Should get a meal to eat.
But when the crooner's on the wire
There is no dinner on the fire;
With streaming eyes
The dear thing sighs;
"Ain't he sweet?"

BEYOND THE EMERGENCY

Signs multiply that the federal government is quietly laying plans to retrench on national outlays for relief and to shift a larger and larger share of the problem to the states and local communities.

The theory back of this is that the lavish outpouring of federal funds during the early months of the Roosevelt regime was an emergency move only and that since the direct phase of the emergency is over the problem must go back to the local units of government.

Obviously the federal government could not go on indefnitely at the rate of relief expenditures it had established.

But there is danger in a too facile assumption that the "emergency" is over and a too sweeping relegation of the problem to the states and local committees.

It is quite true that things are looking up, that some of the more threatening features of the emergency that existed in March 1933 are out of the picture. But we still face difficulties, not specifically due to the market collapse but inherent in the fact that our producing power has developed faster than our purchasing power. And these difficulties constitute an emergency that is far from over.

It is, I think, one of the most urgent obligations of national leadership to work out and get into effect as promptly as possible a nationally integrated plan that will meet relief needs with uniform effectiveness until statesmanship can regain control of the economic situation created by the fact of our technical processes having developed so much more rapidly than our economic policies have been perfected.

The plight of the pinched and the unemployed in both urban and rural areas grows out of the fact that our control of industrial relations and of international relations is obsolete. We shall not get out of the woods until our industrial policies spread the national income much more widely and until our international policies reopen the channels of world trade to absorb more of our surplus production.

These problems of policy are national. The states can do little to hasten their solution. Meanwhile these obsolete policies are creating a permanent army of unemployed that will survive the "emergency" caused by the market collapse. And the primary responsibility for the relief needs of this permanent or semi-permanent army of unemployed must, I think continue to rest on the nation rather than the states.

APPRECIATION

Appreciation, that great stimulant to joyful living, needs two to make it possible. One gives and the other receives and both rejoice.

"Ma, I've polished the car and it looks wonderful. Come and see."

'Can't you see I'm busy. If it's clean it's a good thing. It needed it."

A saddened disappointed boy went back to a dreary job. All the fun of making the car look like new had vanished. The light had gone out of the lad's day—and out of his eye and his heart as well. He wanted appreciation and he got a rebuff. What about mother? How does she feel about appreciation?

It is after dinner time. The baked apple dumplings served with hard sauce flavored with nutmeg, just the way father and son liked them had been eaten to the last crumb. Father seated himself in his armchair and spread his newspaper. Son slid out of his chair and went to his corner to do his homework. Mother looked at them a bit grimly.

"I see you ate your dumplings?"

Son said nothing. Father lowered his paper and looked over the top of it inquiringly. "What's that?"

"I see you ate your apple dumplings. They couldn't have been so bad."

"No, no. They were all right," said father going back to his paper. Mother's face took on a grimmer look. She was about to speak, looked at son buried in his books, at father behind his paper, turned on her heel and slammed the door behind her. Father and son looked at each other, signalled with their eyebrows and turned to their reading.

"That's appreciation for you. Stand on your feet half a day cooking a dinner that's fit to eat and it's gobbled up without as much as Thank you. The next time this family gets apple dumplings—" and the long suffering dishpan heard the rest.

It takes two to cultivate appreciation. One to give the other to receive and both to rejoice. Children do not learn to be appreciative when they are not appreciated. When mother refused to go to the window to look at the car she taught her son that appreciation was not in that family spirit. She was anxious to make those dumplings perfect enough to win praise and appreciation but she forgot that the boy was making his dumplings too. That he needed appreciation more than she did although she needed it badly enough.

Go out of your way to thank and praise and cheer the children. When they do well tell them so. That is the way they learn to appreciate your efforts, to thank you, to express their love and gratitude. That sort of thing is largely a matter of imitation. Set the children the right example, fill the household with the right spirit and they will rise to it. In other words, "Do as you would be done by."

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

THE CHURCH AND WAR

From 312 A. D., when, according to legend, the Emperor Constantine accepted Christianity because of the supposed support derived from the God of the Christian in the battle with rebellious subjects, the official Christian church has invariably supported the state in war. The intimate connection between the church and the war makers lasted until the middle of the 17th century when George Fox, an itinerant preacher, began to preach the pernicious doctrine of non-resistance which, with but few exceptions, was despised by organized religion.

By the middle of the 19th century a large number of the more advanced thinkers of the church and society in general began to doubt the justice and religiousness of the close association of the church and war. Written on the eve of the Civil War, James B. Lowell said:

Ez fer war, I call it murder—
There you have it plain and flat.
I don't want to go no furder
Than my Testament fer that.

The general revolt of the church against war which followed the Spanish-American episode at the end of the 19th century led those sincerely interested in peace to believe that at last the church had honestly begun to teach the principles of Christ, in this one direction at least. This belief was rudely upset during the course of the World War when the church not only supported the war, but actually became more vehement in its denunciation of the enemy and pacifists than did the government.

Of the hundreds of church leaders who had advocated peace and fought against war (in times of peace), only about 20 remained true to the teachings of their Christ. The others, forgetting their Christianity in their desire to curry popular favor, not only did not work for peace but actively entered into the task of enticing the young men in their congregations into the army, teaching them the "moral obligations" of mass murders to society. "Beyond all doubt," Dr. Lansing declared, "our pure motives and purposes have received upon them the divine sanction God could not express Himself in antagonism to what we are doing:

In the true spirit of brotherly love, as practiced by the church, the clergy declared that "there is a human beast at our doors—a human beast who knows no pity and who has forgotten all the rules of honor," that "untamed barbarians and maritime murderers," were loose in the world, and that "Made in Germany" is synonymous with "Made in Hell." Dr. Hillis recommended the sterilization of the male population of Germany and the segregation of the women so that the German race might be completely exterminated.

Such an attitude was not the unique position of the American church. The church of all countries, forgetting their Christ, yet speaking directly, as they claimed, for God, actively encouraged and supported the governments in their mass attempts at murder.

The record of the church and its ministers, those men who claim divine inspiration, who attempt to interpret the divine will to the unenlightened laymen, has been anything but an honorable one. The hypocrisy, the cowardice, the selfishness of the church, has alienated that large group of serious young people who are trying conscientiously to follow the teachings of Christ. The revolt against the church, so prevalent in modern society, is a revolt against hypocrisy, against fraud, against a religion that is not of Christ but of Mammon.

It is only through an honest and sincere reversion to Christianity that the church can ever hope again to interest the youth of the world in organized religion. It is only when the church, in times of stress and through actual sacrifice, can prove that it is sincere and Christian that it will ever attract the honest and enlightened support of an enlightened humanity.

Those who believe in Christianity can thank God that a substantial portion of the clergy, at least in America, is beginning to realize the true merit of the teachings of the man they profess to follow. To a recent questionnaire sent to 100,000 clergymen in the United States there a total of 20,647 who replied. And of these 13,997 said they believed "that the churches of America should now go on record as refusing to sanction or support any further war."

For the first time since 312 A. D., when the church became the handmaiden of the army, a vigorous, dissenting element is demanding that the church itself should live up to the teachings of its founder. Such a church would again receive the approbation of man.

EDUCATION IS LIFE

No better example of the practical training received in the modern university can be cited than today's edition of the Santa Ana Register, which has been edited completely by a crew of college students from the School of Journalism of the University of Southern California.

"Education is life," declares the noted educator John Dewey, and college administrators having accepted this dictum, are endeavoring to make the training they offer just as practical and true to outside life as possible. Lectures, textbook material, exercises and discussions in the classroom are supplemented by actual practice in carrying out the theories.

Under a plan of the School of Journalism, U. S. C. students are sent out on approximately 15 field trips each year, in which they take charge of the editorial activities of various southern California community newspapers, handling the gathering of material, news writing, copyreading, editorial writing and makeup of the pages. In this way are students given advance information and practice in meeting the complex problems offered by the modern world.

KIDNAPING MUST BE MADE UNPROFITABLE

It is one of the most serious blows against modern American civilization that kidnapers range the country, making off with victims and holding them for ransom. The Gettle and Robles cases, in which no ransoms were paid, are the exception among the recent kidnaping attempts. The crooks have escaped with the ransom in almost every other case.

Why should kidnaping flourish today as it did in the days of the robber barons?

Modern criminals, equipped with high speed motor cars and machine guns, can escape swiftly into other states where local officers are impotent. They can shoot their way out of almost any police trap. They can negotiate with the victim's family, asking them to hold off the police until after the ransom is paid. They have everybody, police and family, helpless while they complete plans to get the money. The threat of torture and death makes all agencies play into their hands.

Obviously many things are needed to combat the gangs. We need federal police that know no state boundaries, police that are equipped better than the criminals. But most of all we need federal criminal legislation.

Crime is far more than a local problem. Crooks are engaged in interstate commerce, and it is foolish for local agencies to try to deal with them effectively. We need federal laws that will prohibit the sale of machine guns to individuals and private companies. Laws that will require the registration of all fire arms. Laws that will create a federal police force. And certainly a drastic, sharp-toothed law to prevent further kidnaping.

The kidnaping law should make it a felony to pay a ransom or to negotiate with a kidnaper. To do so should render one an accessory to the crime. What would be the status of kidnaping under such a law? It would stop, because there would be no profit in it.

The no-ransom, no-negotiation law is not impractical, and it will not result in the victims' being killed or tortured in the hope of getting the families to relent and break the law. Since the measure was passed in England there have been no kidnapings. The potential kidnapers know that the business will not pay.

Kidnaping can be outlawed and the death penalty imposed upon every kidnaping, but there will always be crimes of this kind unless they are made unprofitable. Congress can do no better service to this country than to pass legislation of this sort.

WHY WORRY? HERE'S A SOLUTION

Why worry? Don Francisco, venerable Santa Ana pioneer philosopher, offers this solution to the question that has puzzled the ages:

I wonder why folks worry. There are only two reasons for worry: Either you are successful or you are not successful. If you are successful there is nothing to worry about; if you are not successful there are only two things to worry about. Your health is either good or you're sick; if your health is good there is nothing to worry about; if you are sick there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to get well or you are going to die; if you are going to get well there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to die there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to heaven or you are not going to heaven; and if you are going to heaven there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to the other place you'll be so darn busy shaking hands with old friends you won't have time to worry—so why worry?

Wind Erosion Offers Problem to Middle West

San Bernardino Sun

A large part of the country has been learning about wind erosion. Successive years of drouth in the Middle West have brought about widespread, freakish dust storms. Recently a cloud of dust blanketed part of Minnesota and spread as far east as the Atlantic and as far south at Washington. Considerable damage was done not only to human eyes and throats but to young crops. In some places drouth-powdered top soil was removed by the wind, leaving roots exposed to the air. In other places it was deposited as a fine coating over tender young shoots. Both processes were destructive.

Wind erosion is an old story to soil conservation students and to sections of the country where rainfall is normally slight. Near Dalhart, Texas, for example, it is a problem requiring continual study and preventive effort. Farm leaders there point out that vegetation of some kind is essential to hold the soil. Many farmers, therefore, have found it wise to spare certain weeds and wild vines which they would otherwise try to eradicate. Late fall weeds are allowed to remain until after the high winds of the following spring.

It is estimated that wise cooperation with these weeds has saved 60 per cent of the soil fertility that would have been lost by unchecked wind erosion. Forestation would be another and more lasting aid.

BEYOND THE EMERGENCY

Signs multiply that the federal government is quietly laying plans to retrench on national outlays for relief and to shift a larger and larger share of the problem to the states and local communities.

The theory back of this is that the lavish outpouring of federal funds during the early months of the Roosevelt regime was an emergency move only and that since the direct phase of the emergency is over the problem must go back to the local units of government.

But there is danger in a too facile assumption that the "emergency" is over and a too sweeping relegation of the problem to the states and local committees.

It is quite true that things are looking up, that some of the more threatening features of the emergency that existed in March 1933 are out of the picture. But we still face difficulties, not specifically due to the market collapse but inherent in the fact that our producing power has developed faster than our purchasing power. It is, I think, one of the most urgent obligations of national leadership to work out and get into effect as promptly as possible a nationally integrated plan that will meet relief needs with uniform effectiveness until statesmanship can regain control of the economic situation created by the fact of our technical processes having developed so much more rapidly than our economic policies have been perfected.

We shall not get out of the woods until our industrial policies spread the national income much more widely and until our international policies reopen the channels of world trade to absorb more of our surplus production.

These problems of policy are national. The states can do little to hasten their solution. Meanwhile these obsolete policies are creating a permanent army of unemployed that will survive the "emergency" caused by the market collapse. And the primary responsibility for the relief needs of this permanent or semi-permanent army of unemployed must, I think continue to rest on the nation rather than the states.

"Ma, I've polished the car and it looks wonderful. Come and see."

'Can't you see I'm busy. If it's clean it's a good thing. It needed it."

"Don't bother me with your nonsense. I can't leave my work just because you did something."

A saddened disappointed boy went back to a dreary job. All the fun of making the car look like new had vanished. The light had gone out of the lad's day—and out of his eye and his heart as well. He wanted appreciation and he got a rebuff. What about mother? How does she feel about appreciation?

It is after dinner time. The baked apple dumplings served with hard sauce flavored with nutmeg, just the way father and son liked them had been eaten to the last crumb. Father seated himself in his armchair and spread his newspaper. Son slid out of his chair and went to his corner to do his homework. Mother looked at them a bit grimly.

"I see you ate your dumplings?"

Son said nothing. Father lowered his paper and looked over the top of it inquiringly. "What's that?"

"I see you ate your apple dumplings. They couldn't have been so bad."

"No, no. They were all right," said father going back to his paper. Mother's face took on a grimmer look. She was about to speak, looked at son buried in his books, at father behind his paper, turned on her heel and slammed the door behind her. Father and son looked at each other, signalled with their eyebrows and turned to their reading.

"That's appreciation for you. Stand on your feet half a day cooking a dinner that's fit to eat and it's gobbled up without as much as Thank you. The next time this family gets apple dumplings—" and the long suffering dishpan heard the rest.

It takes two to cultivate appreciation. One to give the other to receive and both to rejoice. Children do not learn to be appreciative when they are not appreciated. When mother refused to go to the window to look at the car she taught her son that appreciation was not in that family spirit. She was anxious to make those dumplings perfect enough to win praise and appreciation but she forgot that the boy was making his dumplings too. That he needed appreciation more than she did although she needed it badly enough.

Go out of your way to thank and praise and cheer the children. When they do well tell them so. That is the way they learn to appreciate your efforts, to thank you, to express their love and gratitude. That sort of thing is largely a matter of imitation. Set the children the right example, fill the household with the right spirit and they will rise to it. In other words, "Do as you would be done by."
